Parochial Schools— Bucking the Decline

By JANET PARKER

Some parents willingly pay twice for their children's education — and they're doing it in greater numbers than ever before.

For the first time, San Mateo County's parochial schools are steadily gaining enrollment while public schools are struggling for students.

Despite the increasing tax burden for the support of public education, many parents are investing an additional $300 to $800 in tuition to enroll their children in the parochial schools of this county.

It's a phenomenon that's causing many public school educators to give parochial schools today more than a passing glance.

Public Schools Wane, These Keep Growing

According to the county Department of Education, the number of public school students in kindergarten to 12th grade dropped from 129,349 in 1975-76 to 103,343 in 1976-77.

But the Roman Catholic Archdiocese in San Francisco reports the opposite trend in the parochial schools. There are 6,805 elementary and 2,100 secondary parochial school students this year — compared to 6,653 and 1,982 last year. Not a drastic increase but not a decline, either.

It's good news for many of the parochial schools that were faced with the possibility of closing their doors five years ago.

It's bad news for the public schools that are losing so many students, they risk shutting down campuses and laying off teachers.

"I don't think it's a case of flight from the public schools," said Father Michael Mitchell of the Archdiocese in San Francisco. "It's a case of holding our own in a market we always had."

Just as public education has changed in the last decade, so has private education, Mitchell said. No institution, he said, changes gracefully and change for parochial schools has meant increased tuition and more costly lay staff.

"Our clients have decided they can bear the costs and that lay people can teach religious education," Mitchell said.

At least one public school board in the county, South San Francisco Unified, has faced the fact that something is luring students from the public classrooms to the religious schools.

The district's enrollment consultant, Dr. Edward LaFranchi, recently told the South San Francisco Board of Trustees that the 22 schools lost 120 students to parochial schools this year — students that he had projected would attend public schools.

Total enrollment in the four South San Francisco parochial elementary schools increased from 792 in 1974-75 to 896 in 1976-77. La Franchi said it's likely many more students were lost to the county's Catholic high schools.

LaFranchi labeled it one of the major reasons his enrollment projection for the dustrict this year was 286 students too high.

Better education? A rebellion against public schools? A return to the moralistic and structured atmosphere of religious schools?

Not everyone in the parochial schools agrees it's as simple a matter as Father Mitchell says.

Principals, educators and parents agree on only one thing — that there are many reasons that the parochial schools are gaining momentum.

Joyce Harnett of South San Francisco has watched closely as the parochial schools have come of age since 1970. She is a member of the executive committee for the Catholic National Association of Boards of Education.

"I for one in this county do not say public schools are any better or any worse than they were 10 years ago," Harnett said. She believes parents are turning to public schools for other reasons.

Last year was the first year that the county Association of Boards of Education for the parochial schools noticed the upward enrollment trend, Mrs. Harnett said.

As president of the county group at that time, she conducted a survey of parents who had transferred their children from public to parochial schools.

Of the 178 responses, 50 or 28.1 per cent said they based the transfer on the need for religious instruction.

However, dissatisfaction with public schools was the reason given by 17.4 per cent. Another 10.7 per cent said their decision was made simply because they had always intended to enroll their children in Catholic school.

Other major reasons included parochial school discipline, family tradition to attend Catholic schools and better education than in public schools — each receiving 7.3 per cent of the ballot.

"Over the last 10 years, I've always heard if you raise tuition, you will lose enrollment," Mrs. Harnett said. "I never believed that."

Parochial and other private schools across the country are proving that theory is simply not true, she said.

For example, enrollment at Serra High School in San Mateo, a college prep Catholic school for boys, increased more than 20 per cent since 1975-76, from 700 to 817 this year — even though tuition went up from $780 to $840 a student. Tuition in 1972 was only $480.

Daly City Adopts Sweeping Affirmative Action Program

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The City of Daly City Monday night adopted a sweeping new affirmative action program designed to end alleged race and sex discrimination in city hiring practices.

In all, six separate resolutions were adopted by the five council members to put the program, earlier recommended by the city's Personnel Board, into effect.

The adoption of the program on a one-year basis ends some three years of running battles between the city, employe representatives and the Fair Employment Practices Commission.

Even the program's most vocal opponents — city employes' union spokesmen — said they would cooperate in instituting the plan, at least for the coming year.

George Saeger, president of Local 919, American Federation of Municipal Employes, commented, we can live with it" following the council's decision to put the program into effect immediately.

Last week, Saeger had called the program "a real hot potato," and said the program would eliminate civil service in the city.

The decision to put the program into effect for Daly City city employes was not reached overnight.

For months, council members and the city staff have agonized over how to meet the demands of the FEPC.

Two years ago, women employes of Local 919 complained to the FEPC that they were being discriminated against because of their sex. The FEPC ordered an investigation into the allegations and assigned B. J. Miller to the task.

Monday, Ms. Miller said she was "quite pleased" with the council and staff action to adopt many of her recommendations, especially those aimed at ending race or sex discrimination in both hiring and promotional policies of the city.

She reminded the council during Monday's public hearing that the city's ethnic minority makeup now stands at some 42.4 per cent and is rapidly rising. Yet the city has only 15 per cent minorities on its payroll.

Ms. Miller said she hopes to have the city bring those two figures closer together in the next five years.

City Manager David Rowe, in outlining his recommendations to the council, said the city was in good financial shape and no layoffs of personnel are anticipated.

She said Daly City was the most cooperative and adopted the program "far faster than any of the others."

Councilman McRobert Stewart said the city had long ago recognized the problem and was trying to resolve it.

But the state was placing a burden on the city by continually pressuring it, he said.

A minor exchange of words developed between Ms. Miller and Stewart when she addressed him as "councilperson" and he demanded she address him as "councilman."

The FEPC recommended 33 changes, ranging from redesignating various titles of employes (such as fireman to firefighter) to "open" exams.

An "open examination" would allow qualified persons from outside the city to take examinations for jobs within Daly City.

And instead of the former method of "the rule of three" for hiring city personnel, the list will be modified to show all qualified persons.

In the past, anyone from the top three scorers could be slected for hiring or promotion.

At the end of one year, the city will review the program and either modify it, continue the program, or abolish it.

Close Match But at The End, Net for Tennis Fund: 50c

What to do about charging a fee for the use of the tennis courts atop reservoir 5-B in Serramonte was smashed back and forth like a tennis ball by the Daly City council Monday.

Five different motions were made and rejected on whether to charge a 50-cent per person fee to use the courts at night before the last was finally adopted.

Cost of lighting the courts is sending the city's reserve fund into the red and a revenue transfusion is needed to bring it back at least into the pink, Charles Vincent, director of Recreation, Parks and Maintenance told the council. It is the only one open at night.

But how to do it, or even if it should be done, was the subject of much discussion among the council.

Councilman Victor Kyriakis noted that no fee is charged at any other city court. Therefore, any money collected at the Serramonte court should be earmarked for those courts alone.

Councilman McRobert Stewart said the same thing last week and repeated it Monday.

Councilman William Schumacher felt the bookkeeping would be too much of a strain on the city and the money collected should be put in the general fund to be used by everyone.

Mayor Anthony Giammona went along with Vincent's suggestion that 50 cents per hour per person be charged and the money used to buy items for all the city's tennis courts, in addition to paying for the electricity at Serramonte.

On this motion, the council voted 3-2 to reject.

On a special fund to be used only at Reservoir 5-B courts the council voted 3-2 to reject.

On whether to put the money into the city's eneral fund, as proposed by Schumacher, the matter died after no one else seconded it.

The motion to charge any fee at all hit a snag when the council voted 4-1 to reject it.

Finally, Giammona suggested a compromise: Half the revenues collected could go into a special fund solely for use at the Serramonte court, and the other half to other courts in the city.

Even this motion was not unanimous.

It passed 4-1, with Schumacher casting the dissenting vote.

Reaction to Proposal: 'It Stinks'

Residents Boo Garbage Site

Residents of Pacifica's Edgemar area packed the City Council chambers Monday night to let it be known they absolutely don't want a garbage transfer station in their neighborhood.

Some 150 persons crowded into the meeting room, frequently booing council members remarks concerning the potential use of the vacant Edgemar School site property.

The council agreed to hold a study session on Feb. 2 to discuss progress in the search for the transfer station site as well as a city corporation yard site.

"I would hope that if the Edgemar site is going to be the location, you will bear with us and work with us," Councilman Nick Gust told the crowd. "We're not trying to ram something down your throat."

For several years, the Coastside Scavenger Co. serving Pacifica has been dumping its garbage at the Mussel Rock dumpsite operated by Daly City.

However, an engineering study disclosed recently there is a danger Mussel Rock could slide into the ocean during an earthquake. The threat of this possibility has forced the Regional Water Quality Control Board to order the closing down of the dump as soon as possible.

The WQCB could close the site in January, City Manager Don Weidner said, although it is likely that use of the site will be extended to August.

In the meantime, both Daly City and Pacifica must decide what to do with garbage collected in their cities.

Trips by scavenger trucks to the nearest dumpsite — probably Ox Mountain in Half Moon Bay — would be extremely costly and inconvenient, scavenger company officials say.

Since October a committee of officials from both cities has held three meetings to discuss the possibility of a joint transfer station. Such a station would allow garbage to be compacted, minimizing the number of trips to the dump.

Officials held their last meeting Friday and word of their proposal spread rapidly through the Edgemar neighborhood over the weekend.

Councilman Gust said it is the committee's recommendation and first choice to pursue a transfer station at Mussel Rock for the use of both cities. However, it is not certain that the Regional Coastal Commission, which must approve such an application, would find that site appropriate.

The second choice, Gust explained, is the Edgemar site now owned by the Laguna Salada Unified School District.

If that site were chosen, the city could also construct its long-awaited corporation yard to house city vehicles and equipment.

Gust said he hated to see residents form a protest when no official proposal has been made.

"It's just human nature for everyone to get up in arms and start screaming," Gust said.

The committee's intention, he said, is to find an alternative site to Mussel Rock in case development is not permitted there.

Edgemar, he said, has the necessary access onto Highway One and its cost is believed to be half that of Mussel Rock.

He was interrupted by shouts of "How about next to your restaurant?" and other angry outbursts.

Gust owns two restaurants in Rockaway Beach.

The council, he said, wants the transfer station controlled just as much as the residents do. He said the facility would take up only 1 to 1½ acres of the 10-acre parcel.

"We would like to design something you will approve of. Why don't you give us a

Audit: Garbage Hike 'Justified'

A special audit of the Daly City Scavenger Company books conducted by the prestigious audit firm of Ernst & Ernst is today being evaluated by the City of Daly City.

Monday the council was presented with two separate reports from the nationwide audit company.

The special audit confirmed what audits conducted by Richard T. Dwyer of Daly City had earlier stated — Unless a rate increase of some 30 per cent had been granted to the scavenger company by the city, the company would have gone broke months ago.

As it was, the scavenger company had been operating in the red for well over a year, both audits confirmed.

A forecast report made as of Oct. 18, 1976, ventured that during the next three years the bulk of company profits must be used to fund replacement equipment.

This would curtail payment of any dividends to shareholders.

There are six partners in the scavenger company.

One of the partners works full-time at an affiliate company, Serv-U-Debris, but is paid a salary of $41,250 annually through the scavenger company office, the report explained.

City Manager David Rowe said his office was now evaluating the report and would offer comments on it to the council in 30 days.

In other action Monday, the council named Frank Karavos of 729 Hanover St., to fill the unexpired term of recently resigned Planning Commissioner Frank Tardelli.

Tardelli's term expires in 1978. Business demands dictated Tardelli's resignation, the former commissioner said in a letter to Mayor Anthony Giammona.

Karavos has been active in civic matters in Daly City in recent years.

Also appointed to fill in the unexpired term of her husband, was Mrs. Nancy Guevara on the Economic Opportunity Commission (EOC).

Conrad Guevara was forced to resign from the commission when he was assigned to a teaching position on Guam, M.I. It is a one-year appointment.

Life in Prison for Killer

A week-old California Supreme Court ruling that the state's death penalty is unconstitutional has spared a Hollywood man convicted of killing a Daly City man last June.

Despite the jury's recommendation that Gerald Thomas Miller, 25, of Hollywood be sentenced to death, the judge ruled that he should get life in prison instead. He will be eligible for parole in seven years.

Miller was convicted of first-degree murder and robbery in the death of Robert Thompson, 52, who had picked up Miller and his companion, Nicki Lee Diamond, 26, as Thompson was driving to Lake Tahoe.

After the death penalty was overturned, the sentence reverted to life in prison with possibility of parole, Miller's attorney argued. Diamond is due for trial Jan. 11.

Clerk's Killer Is Convicted

A jury late Monday convicted William E. Rucker of first-degree murder and robbery for the rifle-slaying of 55-year-old Bonnie Jean Baumann inside See's Candy Store in Redwood City last July 31, rejecting a defense of diminished capacity due to alcoholism.

The mothers of both the defendant and victim sat less than eight feet apart when veteran court clerk Jack Thomas read the verdicts.

Bruno Peak Home Plans Detailed

By JANET PARKER

Visitacion Associates (VA) unveiled a long-awaited 1,036-dwelling unit plan for the development of the San Bruno Mountain slope above South San Francisco Tuesday, Dec. 7.

VA General Manager Robert Follett told the South San Francisco City Council and Planning Commission that if all goes well, development will begin in 18 months.

The meeting was the first public presentation of VA's detailed plans for the slope, an area expected to be eventually annexed to South San Francisco.

Many county residents who have followed the controversial project since 1974 — either as supporters or opponents — attended the meeting to learn of VA's plans.

Project Manager Ronald Grudzinski said that the type of housing and the number of units has been altered since the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors approved the general plan amendment for development in April.

VA now plans to construct 555 single-family homes and 481 condominiums. The county amendment, as proposed by VA, called for a total of 985 housing units — all of them attached townhouses and apartments.

Follett said that VA's "refined market research," along with its completion of a more detailed development plan, led to the change in the housing structures.

"It told us there is a screaming demand for detached single-family dwelling in this county," Follett said.

Since April, VA has decided to emphasize single-family homes and de-emphasize the multiple family attached housing structures. The project will accommodate no more than 2,700 persons, Follett said.

Early this year, VA's plans to develop most of San Bruno Mountain were the focus of turbulent public hearings that caused an angry rift between construction advocates and environmentalists.

In April, the Board of Supervisors finally voted 3-2 to approve general plan amendments for all except the area known as the Saddle, the major portion of the development.

Now, however, VA is proceeding only with the South San Francisco portion of its plans. VA contends that other areas — including the northeast ridge near Daly City — are economically unfeasible without the Saddle, and has filed suit to gain back development rights.

In the meantime, the developer is initiating proceedings with South San Francisco, and Grudzinski said VA will file for hearing before the city within two weeks.

The firm has requested that South San Francisco initiate annexation proceedings immediately by notifying the Land-Agency Agnecy Formation Commission (LAFCO). Acting City Planner William Costanzo said annexation proceedings could take one to two years. Follett sharply disagreed.

"I can see under no circumstances would it take that length of time — even if we have to go to the district attorney to make sure it doesn't take that time," Follett said. He projected that LAFCO should be able to complete annexation hearings in three months — even though a sphere of influence study designating South San Francisco as the city of authority must still be completed.

Grudzinski said LAFCO officials have said that a detailed analysis of the land was already provided in the general plan amendment procedures and a new environmental impact report would not be necessary. A hold-up in annexation by LAFCO, Follett said, could result in more litigation.

"We're prepared to go to Superior Court again if necessary," he said.

The South San Francisco portion of the plan covers 323 acres — only 99 of them to be covered with residential units.

Although the county amendment allowed high rise structures up to 10 stories, the current VA plan is for building no higher than three stories.

The single-family homes, Follett said, will be built on 35-by-100 foot lots with 1,600 to 1,800 square feet of floor space. The project will include two-, three- and four-bedroom homes. He currently estimates they will sell for at least $60,000.

"It could be considerably higher than that," Follett said.

"These would, under no circumstances, be cookie cutter, ticky-tacky," Follett said. When councilmen questioned the ability to build quality houses on 35-by-100-foot lots, Follett said he doesn't anticipate a problem.

"I don't think the size of the lot creates ticky-tacky houses," he said.

Grudzinski said it will be "one of the better communities within South San Francisco."

Councilmen also asked Follett to compare the type of houses to existing homes in this region.

"I'd hate to think we would build anything that looks like this stuff around here," Follett said. He said comparable developments are located in states, including Hawaii.

The remainder of the project, as presented Monday night, includes 10.4 acres of neighborhood commercial space, 20 acres of combined neighborhood-administrative changes and a new student recruitment program.

A year ago, Serra hired a part-time development director strictly to promote Serra's public image.

"Part of it is an all out effort to encourage students to attend our school," Father Schipper said. The new director — much in the style of colleges and universities — visits traditional public and private feeder schools — enticing eighth graders to apply at Serra. Nearly 700 elementary students attended a recent Serra drama production as a result of the recruitment effort.

The Archdiocese officials are reluctant to say that the Catholic schools are waging an all-out recruitment program.

"Recruitment carries evil connotations," Father Mitchell said. He said there have been accusations for many years that the Catholic boys schools milk off the cream of the athletic crop to enroll at their schools through scholarships.

Many county parochial elementary schools are reporting that they have waiting lists this year.

Our Lady of Perpetual Help in Daly City has 296 students this year with 20 families on a waiting list to enroll their children.

St. Robert's in San Bruno has 313 students on its attendance sheets — with room for only seven more students to reach the maximum class size of 40.

"Our enrollment has been skyrocketing," said Brother Michael, principal of All Souls School in South San Francisco. Since 1974-75, enrollment has increased from 226 to 285 students.

Six years ago, that campus also nearly closed. Enrollment had dropped to 223 students and All Souls' financial situation was desperate. There were only eight students in the first grade, a class that serves as a barometer for a school's future.

As had occurred with many other schools in the county, the decreasing number of women entering the convent meant there were fewer nuns in the school. All Souls was the first parochial school on the Peninsula to revert to an all-lay staff.

"It hit our parents quite hard," the principal said. "Our budget is quite high. There was a period when we weren't sure we could make it go." Now the first grade and five other grades are filled.

Enrollment at St. Dunstan's in San Bruno has increased from 265 last year to 293 this year. When the school lost the Sisters of Notre Dame in 1971, enrollment was severely affected.

"Families began to loose heart when the sisters withdrew," Sister Eda Ryah, the current principal, said. However, another order, the Sisters of Mercy from Ireland, stepped in and enrollment has been increasing since.

Sister Ann Xavier at Good Shepherd School in Pacifica said 262 students are enrolled compared to 248 last year. There are waiting lists for all but the fourth and eighth grades.

"More and more people are recognizing what Catholic schools are doing."

An offshoot of declining public school enrollment is a better teaching staff in the parochial schools, says Jim Maxwell of San Mateo. Maxwell is the current president of the county school board association.

The taxpayer-supported schools are forced to release many of their young teachers who are farther down the seniority line. Many of those young energetic teachers, he said, are finding jobs in the parochial schools. The religious schools, he said, are getting the pick of the crop.

But most everyone agrees there's a renewed interest in the morality and religious background that's naturally part of every parochial classroom.

Ten years ago, Mrs. Harnett said, there was a feeling that religious education could best be taught in Saturday and after-school classes.

So, parents stopped doleing out hundreds of dollars in tuition and instead sent their children to the public classes.

Now, she said, parents are having a change of heart.

"Religion in the Catholic schools is there all day," Mrs. Harnett said. The children attend Mass together, pray together, and write their own liturgies together.

Father Michael Mitchell of the Archdiocese says when the schools lost most of their religious staff, parents turned away. They felt that a Catholic school without nuns must not be a valid Catholic school.

Lay staffs, however, have proven capable of communicating religious values, he said. Parents who pulled their children out of the parochial schools four years ago are signing them up again.

"Folks are after value-centered education. That's the name of the game," he said.

Where 'Spare The Rod' Makes The Difference

Most of the principals and parents agree that the kind of discipline enforced in the parochial schools is gaining the attention of parents.

Earl Connolley was a public school instructor when he became principal of an Episcopal school, St. Matthew's in San Mateo. Enrollment there hit a low of 165 four years ago. It's now up to 196.

Connolley said he has found many parents stopped backing public education because of a lack of discipline.

What's the difference between public and private school discipline?

"There is discipline here and there isn't in public schools," Connolley said. No one will back a public school principal or teacher in exerting disciplinary action. There's always a public school parent around saying "You're not going to treat my child like that," he said.

"We can do things public school parents won't tolerate," Connolley said. When parents enroll their children at St. Matthew's and most other parochial schools, they are told that disciplinary measures are. For example, a St. Matthew's student may be forced to attend after-school detention or to pay a certain sum of his own money for failing to turn in homework — measures unheard of in public schools today.

Harvey Barnett is a Pacifica public school teacher who is concerned about the loss of children to the parochial schools. This month he is sending a survey to more than 300 Pacifica parents who normally would send their children to public schools but instead have enrolled them in local private and parochial schools.

Barnett, who is working on a curriculum instruction doctorate, said he became alarmed when he realized public school enrollment is dropping faster than the national birth rate. Where are all the students going and why?

The most common reason given, he said, is increasing interest in religious education. Barnett believes there's more to it than that.

He theorizes it has a lot to do with discipline and as well as acadmeic standards.

"We're not even allowed to paddle a child without parental permission," Barnett said. Also, he said, the parochial schools can be selective about the students they accept and consequently they can weed out the troublemakers.

"The kid knows he has to shape up," Barnett said. The public school, he said, has to accept everyone and sometimes it's to the detriment of other children in the classroom.

chance," he said. Many in the audience yelled out, "No, No."

Councilman Stan Farber pointed out that a transfer station is not a garbage dump. in the station, garbage is dumped from the trucks into compactors and hauled out of the building. Nearby residents he said, needn't ever see the garbage.

He said he toured the South Lake Tahoe station and there was absolutely no odor. The building from the outside, he said, looks like any other.

Residents, however, expressed fear of rats scurrying into their neighborhoods and of large garbage trucks using their residential streets.

Christopher Wells headed an ad-hoc committee of residents who said they plan to fight the use of that property every step of the way.

"I don't care how you cut it, garbage is an unsanitary commodity and you're proposing to put it in our back yards," Wells said.

Dan Schaefer questioned the need for a facility in Pacifica. He said that San Francisco's station might be able to handle the coastal city's garbage. He also said that the strong winds in Edgemar will blow odors all over the residential area.

Bob Lanyon said he bought a home one month ago overlooking the proposed site. He didn't buy his home, he said, "to overlook a garbage can".

In a report in November, Asst. Planner Carol Whitmire said the city staff considers the Edgemar site "to offer good opportunities for a transfer station close to Daly City and accessible to Pacifica."

She said the facility would be "generally compatible" with the surrounding residences. The size of the parcel would allow a buffer between the station and the nearby homes, she said. Noise would be minimal, she said, with only a few homes on Waterford Street affected.

Coastside Scavenger Co. President Mario Torrigino has been told by the LSUSD that the site would sell for approximately $25,000 an acre — $250,000 in total.

A firm price is expected by the February meeting.

On the other hand, the Mussel Rock facility has been estimated at $40,000 an acre. Mrs. Whitmire said noise from scavenger trucks would affect Palmetto Avenue residences. Up to two miles of local streets — past apartment buildings and homes — would be involved, she said.

Weidner said it's not certain at this time if the station will be built by both cities. Much depends, he said, on the site that ultimately is chosen.

Other sites Pacifica has considered include Milagra Quarry, the existing Coastside Scavenger building at 2305 Palmetto Ave., Rockaway Hills, Crespi Drive in Linda Mar, San Pedro Terrace and Shamrock Ranch.

Taxpayers to Pick Up Tab For New League Building

By FRANK LaPIERRE and RICK SULLIVAN

California taxpayers can expect to be hit with a $1.9 million bill next year to pay for construction in Sacramento of a new headquarters building for the statewide municipal lobby, the League of California Cities (LOCC).

San Mateo County taxpayers' share of these costs will be some $76,000.

The new building will be located directly across from the state Capitol.

Most city councils in the state already have committed taxpayers to the expenditure.

At a recent LOCC convention in San Diego, the majority of delegates attending the conference approved a resolution creating an assessment program for the project.

There were no negative votes cast by delegates from San Mateo County cities, although the cities of San Carlos, Colma, South San Francisco, Pacifica and Brisbane did not take any position.

It is anticipated however, that these cities eventually will support the building program, since failure to do so would result in expulsion from the league, according to its executive director, Don Benninghoven.

Benninghoven has reported that only three cities in the state voted against the assessment program resolution: Gardena, Westminster and Santa Clara.

Santa Clara Mayor Gary Gilmore said last week that he believes the council there has reconsidered its previous stand on the assessment program and most likely will pay its share.

San Francisco is the largest city that has not taken a position on the resolution. According to the assessment program, San Francisco would be billed about $55,000 for its share of building costs.

San Francisco Asst. City Administrator Tom Miller said the expenditure most likely would not be discussed until Mayor Moscone and the Board of Supervisors begin evaluation of next year's budget, probably sometime in March.

Board President Quentin Kopp, who is also president of the Peninsula Division of the league, said this week he had not yet formed an opinion on the building assessment program.

"I'm not fully aware of all the things connected with this building, but I plan to discuss it further at the next meeting (of the Peninsula Division) in January," Kopp said.

It was almost two years ago that the LOCC began studying alternatives for the location of its Sacramento headquarters.

The league for the last seven years has leased 7,000 square feet of office space in the California State Employees Association building, one block from the Capitol.

In that building, some 22 staff members are involved in every facet of league business. This includes lobbying on the part of member cities, coordinating training programs and seminars for elected and appointed city officials and disseminating legislative information to the municipalities.

In 1974, the CSEA advised the IOCC that its lease would not be renewed when it expired in 1978. This prompted a league building committee to begin discussion where the league headquarters should be moved.

According to Banninghoven, the committee began looking for 10,000 square feet of lease office space and had to travel some two miles from the Capitol before space could be found.

But the committee also found a 12,000-square-foot vacant lot across the street from the Capitol. The Board of Directors of the league authorized the purchase of that lot for $130,000. The league paid cash for it.

So the committee then had two options: lease space two miles from the Capitol or construct a building of its own some 100 yards from the legislature.

The committee and finally the Board of Directors voted unanimously to recommend to the membership that it construct a new building and make all member cities pay for it.

"The reasoning behind the recommendation," explained Benninghoven, "was based on the fact that we believe we can be most effective in getting legislation passed that will aid cities if we are close to the legislators.

"Our legislative representatives are in constant contact with legislators and the main office. It is efficient to have the building located as close as possible to where much of our work is done. A lot of time and energy will be saved," Benninghoven said.

Benninghoven explained that the league has been renting facilities since it was formed 78 years ago as a non-profit organization.

"No business," said Benninghoven, "would ever think about leasing space for that long. It's financially unreasonable."

Benninghoven said he calculated that if the league did rent space, it would cost $2.9 million over the next 25 years. That cost would not include expenses for renting the two other League offices in Los Angeles and Berkeley, he said.

Those arguments were presented to the league membership at its October convention in San Diego. Benninghoven said the overwhelming consensus of the membership was that a resolution creating an assessment program to pay for a new building should be approved.

Asked what the vote was on the resolution, Benninghoven said he did not know. He explained that at the resolution meeting, those who attended were merely asked to raise cards over their heads if they were in favor of spending almost $2 million for the building.

"It was plain from the response that the overwhelming majority favored construction of the new building," said Benninghoven.

During discussion of the resolution, some cities questioned the legality of a non-profit organization assessing cities for construction of a capital outlay project. This is the first time in the league's history that any such assessment program has been discussed, it is understood.

League lawyers — there are four — advised the membership that "since the league as a non-profit corporation is authorized to acquire property and must . . . maintain headquarters in Sacramento, and since city membership in the league is legally authorized . . . the expenditure of city funds to finance the construction of a permanent headquarters serves a proper municipal purpose."

Plans for the new building have already been drafted. They call for a four-story structure — a ground floor for parking, and three floors for office space. Total space, including the parking area, is some 40,000 square feet, almost five times more space than the league now has.

Why such a large building?

Benninghoven explained that the league must be careful not to "underdevelop" the site, which is a prime piece of property in central Sacramento.

He said the league also must plan for future expansion although he said currently there are no plans to add any personnel to the 29 now employed in all three league offices.

And he said that once the new facility is built, some league operations will be consolidated.

For instance, the league magazine, Western City, will be moved from the Berkeley office to Sacramento. There are no plans, however, to close the Berkeley office completely.

According to Benninghoven, the league plans to use the second floor of the new building and to lease the top two floors to "agencies which are affiliated with league business."

"It is hoped that revenue derived from the leased space will pay for maintaining the building," said Benninghaven.

According to the assessment program, member cities will be asked to pay their share of the project cost, based on population figures. For example, the two largest cities in San Mateo County — San Mateo and Daly City — will be expected to pay $9,375 each over a three-year period. If the cities opt to pay the full amount next year, they will get a $900 discount.

This assessment is over and above annual dues paid by member cities to the league.

San Mateo's annual dues are $3,750.

When the Board of Directors recommended the assessment program to the membership, it pledged there would be no increase in dues for the next three years.

The League's last dues increase was in 1972.

The overwhelming majority of elected and appointed officials in this county support the function of the league and its plans for a new headquarters facility, a poll disclosed.

Most agree that the league provides valuable assistance to cities in working toward legislation that helps cities, and in sponsoring training sessions for public officials.

Only two council members contacted by this newspaper, Pam Ketcham of Belmont and Stan Farber of Pacifica, indicated they oppose plans for the new league building.

Mrs. Ketcham said she feared that the building would only "perpetuate an already massive bureaucracy," and she said she didn't believe the expenditure was warranted.

Farber promised "Come budget session, I'm voting against it (the building). I think it is a complete waste of small town money, inasmuch as the league is controlled by big cities.

"As far as a lobbying group for small cities they (the league) do a poor job."

What Each County City To Pay League

The following is a list of the San Mateo County cities and what each will be assessed to help pay for the cost of the League of California Cities headquarters building in Sacramento. The assessment below is the maximum amount of money the cities will be expected to pay.

Foster City: $3,132
Burlingame: $4,707
Hillsborough: $2,250
Millbrae: $3,920
Belmont: $3,920
Brisbane: $1,125
Daly City/Colma: $9,375
Half Moon Bay: $1,950
Menlo Park: $4,707
Pacifica: $5,795
Redwood City: $8,120
San Bruno: $5,795
San Carlos: $4,707
South San Francisco: $7,050

President of League Hopes For Changes in Policies

The incoming president of the League of California Cities, Helen Putnam of Petaluma, has proposed several sweeping policy changes designed to better control attendance at annual meetings of that statewide lobby group.

Mrs. Putnam, elected president two months ago during a general membership meeting of the league in San Diego, already has discussed the changes with the league's executive director, Don Benninghoven.

The changes include hiring of an additional person to maintain an up-to-date centralized registration card file on delegates attending the annual conference; abolishing the usual Wednesday luncheon meeting in favor of a Wednesday breakfast followed by a business session to vote on issues, and recommendations that each city carefully evaluate its ability to maintain full service at home while officials attend the league function.

The final day of the annual meeting is a Wednesday.

Most delegates register on Sunday and then participate in policy development seminars for the remainder of the day.

Mrs. Putnam wants this procedure to continue, according to Benninghoven.

By registering on Sunday, delegates could participate fully and benefit in all discussions leading to final policy recommendations, Benninghoven explained.

The proposals were brought about by disclosures published in this newspaper concerning the absence of city officials and staff at city halls throughout the county, sometimes leaving city operations in the hands of secretaries.

Also, the ability to locate various delegates at the convention was thwarted by the absence of an up-to-date, centralized locater card file at the convention headquarters.

Persons planning to attend the mini-Christmas party being planned by the Executive Board of the Alumni Association of Balboa High School are going to get an opportunity to help.

Mrs. Emily Sumrall, president of the group, reports that she has direct word from Santa, that the mini-party is too early! Santa and the elves are not ready to deliver any presents tomorrow! Knowing that a Christmas party without presents is like "a kiss without a squeeze", Mrs. Sumrall has asked all board members to take a small gift with them to the party and everyone will pretend to be one of Santa's official helpers.

In addition to celebrating the season with the party, the board will conduct a little business, address a few newsletters and make final plans for the Alumni-Varsity basketball game in January.

The gathering will take place in the Sumrall home, 30 Camero Way, in San Francisco, beginning at 7 p.m.

SATURDAY, the World War I veterans in the Menlo Park Veteran's hospital will be the honored guests at a party sponsored by the Pacifica Fifty-Plus Club.

Mrs. Lucille Rentmeester is chairing the party at the hospital. Prizes for games, gifts for the tree, home-made goodies and assorted entertainers will board the bus in Pacifica and head southward to brighten the holiday season for those veterans.

Persons wishing to contribute time, talent or prizes and refreshments should contact Mrs. Rentmeester immediately.

THE STORY OF CHRISTMAS, presented in song, will be a part of the living Christmas tree program at Westlake Baptist church next Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Susan Palmer, publicity chairperson, reports that a service of modern and traditional carols will be presented by the choir and a number of soloists, directed by Jack E. Palmer. For the program the choir will be seated within the confines of a massive Christmas tree erected on the sanctuary platform.

The program will begin at 8 p.m. on all three occasions and the accompanists will be Mrs. Lorraine Taber and Mrs. Ivyle Lederer.

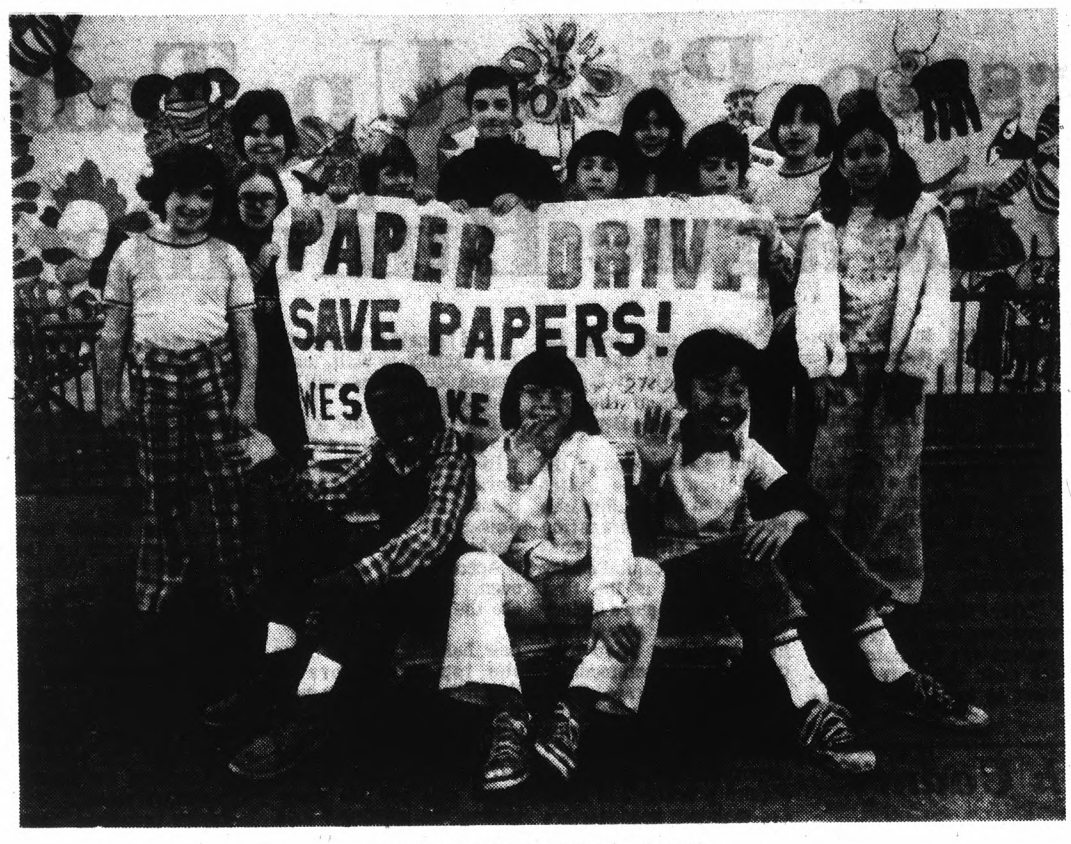
Admission will be free and children will be given a treat at each service.

THE DALY CITY Hostesses Lioness Club celebrated the approach of Christmas with a party in the home of Mrs. Jeanne Tomasell. The ladies enjoyed a dinner and a gift exchange and welcomed the wives of new Lion's Club members to their ranks.

The purpose of the gathering was pleasure, for the lionesses took time out to make a major decision on how the money in the club's benevolence fund will be spent.

WITH CHRISTMAS still ahead you may have trouble thinking about the end of January but members of the Friends of the Daly City Library are hoping you will mark your new calendars with a notation that January 29 will be the evening for a special presentation on Africa.

Mrs. Margaret Connolly will be chairing the evening gathering in the community room of the Serramonte branch of the library.



MONEY FOR NEWSPAPERS!

Westlake School is planning a newspaper drive Jan. 27 and 28. Papers may be brought to school Jan. 29, also between 9 a.m. and noon. The Student Council, above, hopes to raise enough money for a carnival during the school year.

Santa's Corner a Feature of Musical in Colma

Santa's Corner will be held tomorrow from 3 p.m. until the end of the annual Christmas musical at the Garden Village School, 208 Garden Lane, unincorporated Colma.

The Christmas boutique was held last Saturday, but there are still many hand-made items left with some appealing lower prices.

Money raised from this main fund-raiser pays for children's field trips, the planned outside classroom and the Christmas entertainment and other items requested for classroom activities.

Protection of Timber Sought

Nearly 20,000 acres of San Mateo County Coastside timberland are expected to be recommended by the County Planning Commission for inclusion in the new Timberland Preserve Zone (TPZ) which the state is requiring.

The commission is scheduled to decide at its Dec. 15 meeting on a recommendation to the Board of Supervisors in accordance with the Forest Taxation Reform Act.

The board subsequently must take action by March 1, 1977, on the recommendations for rezoning the affected property and for adoption of an amendment to the County Zoning Ordinance establishing the new TPZ zone.

The bulk of the property to be placed in the new zoning is situated on the west side of Skyline Boulevard on either side of Purisima Creek and southeast of Durham Ridge.

The Board of Supervisors already has established a list of "compatible uses" for the 19,732 acres which initially will be placed in TPZ. County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe informed the board last September that possibly as many as 70,000 acres will eventually come under the new zoning.

The new zoning, which protects timberland in the same manner as the Williamson Act protects agricultural land, will result in the loss of more than $500,000 in assessed valuation for the Cabrillo and La Honda-Pescadero unified school districts.

This results from a provision of the new law which provides that the annual ad valorem land value property tax be replaced by a timber harvest tax which is not collected until timber is cut.

Zerne P. Haning

Zerne P. Haning III has been installed as president for 1977 of the San Mateo County Bar Association, succeeding Frank Hannig.

Haning practices in San Carlos.

Other new officers are: Vernon Vale of San Mateo, vice president; James M. Dennis of Redwood City, treasurer; and Robert DuRard of San Mateo, secretary.

Haning said new members of the board of directors for 1977 are George Corey of Millbrae, Margaret Kemp of San Mateo and Robert Lanzone of San Carlos.

The Bar Association manages the highly acclaimed Private Defender program, which makes attorneys in the county available to represent indigents.

It also is involved in several other issues involving the legal field and legislation.

Warm Welcome at Airport Planned for Servicemen

"How about making two fruitcakes instead of one, and giving one to the USO?" asks Barbara Mellin, director of the USO Lounge at San Francisco International Airport.

"During the coming weeks, service men and women from all parts of the United States will spend part of the holiday season at the airport, en route to military assignments overseas or headed home. Christmas is the busiest time of year at the airport USO lounge.

"As a result," she added, "Many contributions of food and volunteer time are needed to provide a warm welcome and assistance to weary travelers.

"Donations of cookies, fruitcake, eggnog, hot chocolate, coffee, tea, punch or fruit to be used during the holiday season would be more than appreciated.

"When making that holiday fruitcake, how about making two? Or how about making an extra dozen or more cookies to contribute to the airport USO lounge and its users, Mrs. Mellin said.

"Most important, we need volunteers willing to donate three or four hours a day, once each week, to welcome the military personnel and their families in the traditional warm spirit of the season."

Anyone wishing to donate refreshments or services may contact USO Lounge Director Barbara Mellin at the airport from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

'Free Leo' Fund Refuses $5

A San Bruno constituent of Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-San Mateo, has taken pity on the congressman and his parking ticket woes at Sacramento Metropolitan Airport.

As reported earlier this week, Ryan is contesting a parking ticket he received on Nov. 30 for parking overtime in a five-minute zone, in order, Ryan claims, to unload 11 pieces of luggage en route to Washington, D.C.

Ryan made a federal case, literally, over the $5 ticket, and wrote to Sacramento County supervisors warning that he may have to review his support of no-strings-attached revenue-sharing money to local governments, since the deputies who ticketed him "didn't seem to have very much else to do."

Municipal Court traffic referee William Tredinnick set Jan. 25 as a trial date for Ryan, saying, "It will have to go to trial so we can hear the officer's version as well as his (Ryan's)."

However, it was revealed today that A.M. Nagle of San Bruno had mailed a $5 money order to Tredinnick, offering to pay Ryan's fine.

"It is so seldom possible to save the taxpayers' money," wrote Nagle. "At last, maybe it is possible. A jury trial is very expensive and I'm willing to invest the $5 so the court's time may be used for a more worthy cause.

"I am not doing this for publicity, so just accept the $5, and run and cancel the ticket."

Tredinnick said the money could not be accepted because Ryan had pleaded innocent. He said the money order will be returned to Nagle with the court's thanks.

There has been no announcement, so far, of the establishment of a legal defense fund to pay the cost of Ryan's legal expenses in connection with the ticket.

Course Fights New Killer — Cafe Coronary

SAVE FROM CHOKING

Many victims of choking are mistakenly believed to be having a heart attack. Elaine Kissil, Red Cross Safety Programs consultant, demonstrates on a dummy how to administer first aid. Choking is the sixth leading cause of accidental death in the United States.

The sixth leading cause of accidental death in the United States is choking.

And, too often, if it happens in a restaurant, people assume the victim is having a heart attack.

That's why accidental choking is often referred to as a "cafe coronary."

A total of 2,900 people died of such accidental choking in 1974, according to the National Safety Council.

As a result, the American Red Cross has undertaken a special training course on how to prevent a choking death. The course was recently given to 100 supervisory and line management staff people at the Hyatt House in Burlingame.

The instructor was Elaine Kissil, Red Cross Safety Programs consultant.

A request for the special training course was made by Dave Hartness, executive assistant manager of food and beverage and safety chairman for Hyatt House.

Besides providing such courses, the Red Cross has available for 10 cents a 24-page booklet entitled, "First Aid for Body Obstruction of the Airway."

Air flow must be restored within four to six minutes to avoid brain damage, it is emphasized.

The book outlines life-saving procedures for adults and children and is available from the Golden Gate Chapter of the American Red Cross in Burlingame at 1449 Bellevue Ave., or from the office in South San Francisco, 803-½ Linden Ave. Additional information may be obtained by telephoning the nearest Red Cross office, listed in the telephone directory.

For Christmas why not give a subscription to a magazine? Choose something different, or a tried and true old favorite. It makes no difference, todays magazines are storehouses of knowledge and pleasure. In them, as one critic wrote, "the camera meets the written word and in a world of color and pleasure."

For an old standby try National Geographic. In the words of Bill Katz, "Few magazines serve so many audiences and purposes. It can be enjoyed by the elementary school child as well as the professional geographer." Its pictures are world famous for their beauty; its articles tell of interesting people, places, customes, activities, animals and plant life. As one critic put it, "National Geographic is a voyeur's dream . . . for gazing on all sorts of exotic delights." No more need be said except to tell you that National Geographic has been published monthly since 1888 and may be obtained from the National Geographic Society, 17th and M Streets, N. W., Washington, D.C. A subscription costs $10 per year.

Sunset, which is another delightful old standby, has been called the "bible of California's suburbanites." Critic Katz calls it "All in all . . . helpful and certainly pleasant." Sunset uses its pages for articles and illustrations on gardening, travel, home, cooking, family relationships, good humor, personalities, how-to-do-it etc. — and all at a sophisticated level. Sunset is published by Sunset Magazine, Menlo Park, Calif. 94025 for $8 per year.

San Francisco features a sophisticated approach to life as it is found on the San Francisco/California scene. Without muckracking it presents the pros and cons of such issues as pot smoking, con games and high rise buildings. Its pages include directories to theaters, restaurants, parks, playgrounds and back country retreats. San Francisco is published monthly at 631 Howard St., San Francisco, Calif. 94105 at $10 per year.

For your pet lovers Dog World and Cat's Magazine are ever interesting. Dog World has its purpose "to disseminate pertinent information to those interested in purebred dogs." However, it has much that is interesting to the owners of dogs with not "all that" blue blood. It is published monthly at 10060 West Roosevelt Road, Westchester, Ill. 60153 at $10 per year.

Approximately half of Cat's Magazine is given over to articles and advertisements of interest to the owners of cats, especially show cats. One of the useful features is a section of general health questions about cats with answers by veterinarians. The critic of periodicals, Bill Katz, writes that Cats Magazine "will appeal to any cat owner, regardless of age." Cats Magazine comes from 2900 Jefferson Ave., Washington, Penn., and cost $6.50 per year.

Then there's Animal Kingdom from the New York Zoological Society (Bronx, New York, 10460 at $6.00 per year) wherein animals that are different from your household pets appear in the articles of each issue. Using pictures and words that resemble the style of National Geographic, Animal Kingdom is a travelogue as well as a biological magazine.

For the man who putters in the basement and tinkers in the back yard — Popular Mechanics, (224 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y., 10019 at $7 per year), Popular Science, (Popular Science Subsription Department, Bouldar, Col. 80302 at $7.94 per year), and Popular Electronics (One Park Ave., New York, N.Y., 10016 at $9.98 per year) are best buys. Neither too general or too technical for the average "guy", each of them burst with fun projects from car and driving to making doll houses. Approximately 14 pages of classified advertising appear each month in each of them.

Craft Horizons appeals to hobby fans of all ages, sexes and sizes. It has been called the magazine for the craftsman, artist, teacher and amateur. Among the topics treated between its covers are ceramics, weaving, metal and woodwork, jewelry, glass, mosaics and enameling. Craft Horizons is published at 44 West 53rd St. New York, N.Y. at $18 per year.

The Family Handyman has as its sub-title The Do It Yourself Magazine. On its pages are found practical suggestins for home repairs, remodeling and gardening. It has been called "the best magazine of its kind." Family Handyman may be obtained from 235 East 45th St., New York, N.Y., 10017 at $9 per year.

So it goes. There are periodicals on every subject and for every taste and reading level. You can see them at your public library and obtain the information necessary to give a Christmas subscription to any of them to your special person.

TEENAGE PROBLEMS

Henry Winkler, left, who plays "The Fonz" in ABC-TV's "HappyDays," will rap with Bay Area teenagers, including eight Serramonte High School students, about the problems of drug-alcohol addiction, suicide and pregnancy in a Channel 7 special "Who's Got Cool" Dec. 16 at 7:30 p.m. The program will also present an overview of teenage problems of the fifties, sixties and today.

CHECK FOR OPERATION SANTA

The Rotary Club of Daly City presented a $500 check for Operation Santa Claus at a recent club luncheon meeting. Rotary president Dave Macabee, left, presents the check to Al Beloiz, who is co-director of Operation Santa Claus. This annual project is a cooperative effort of goodwill to hundreds of families by the Daly City community.

Committee Plans A 'Clean Sweep'

In a special meeting called December 7 by Chairman Frank Murphy, the Cleaner Streets Committee of Daly City voted to ask for federal revenue sharing funds to begin a program of restricted parking on certain days to accommodate the street sweeper machines.

While the exact starting area has not been officially defined, it is known to be a portion of original Daly City. Funds will be requested for poles and signs, according to Mike Sims, superintendent of public works, and if the funds are granted, the street sweepers will be cleaning to the curbs in about six months.

Litter, illegal dumping in vacant lots, overtime parking, street-side car repairing, and oil-covered and broken sidewalks are some of the problems faced by the recently formed committee.

Sponsored by City Councilman Al Teglia, and assisted by Superintendent Mike Sims and Assistant City Manager Ron Mitchell, the committee has held five meetings since early October. The committee has questioned merchants, newspaper distributors and the police as to how they can help keep the city clean.

Members of the committee either represent organizations from all parts of the city, or are interested citizens. Much of the input was given by Ernest Pezzola of the Original Daly City Protective Association and Frank Karavos of the Crocker Neighborhood Association. Police Lt. Phil Labruzzo pledged support from his department.

Awakening the public to the necessity of clean streets before neighborhoods turn into slums is seen by the committee as its highest priority. The recent "Trash-a-thron," in which students from Serramonte and Jefferson High made a clean-up tour of the city, won high praise from the committee. Especially commended were teachers Abe Evenich and Reno Taini, who sponsor this annual event.

For additional help, the committee is enlisting the expertise of the nation-wide "Keep America Beautiful" campaign, which offers training courses in methods by which other cities have overcome the problems faced by Daly City. It is proposed that Daly City people will be given the opportunity to take these courses, and then transmit the information back to the committee.

Teglia, who is mayor pro tempore, set up the committee and has vowed to stay with it until Daly City "looks good all over." The committee members have indicated they are in wholehearted support.

Knee Pads for the Well-Dressed Rider

Yule Skateboard's Unwelcome Bonus

Anticipating heavy sales of skateboards this month, state Health Director Jerome Lackner, M.D., today warned that the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission predicts 11,000 skateboard injuries in 1977 serious enough to require emergency hospital treatment.

"Before you purchase a skateboard, talk to a reputable dealer about the quality of the board," Dr. Lackner suggests. "It's also wise to buy protective equipment such as elbow pads, knee pads and a helmet."

Children who balk should be told that professionals would not be caught on a board without some padding to protect them from a fall, he said.

Most accidents could be prevented, he added, if children avoided skateboarding in congested areas. Many injuries are traced to not knowing how to ride a skateboard, or using a poorly constructed board.

Dr. Lachner suggests using empty parking lots or locations where there is no moving traffic, and avoiding downtown city sidewalks.

He noted that some California cities have banned skateboard riding on downtown sidewalks and that San Diego has banned skateboard riding within the city limits.

In San Mateo County, a number of cities have passed skateboard ordinances. Residents may check with their city clerk or police department.

In the city of San Mateo, for example, the City Council passed a permanent ordinance Dec. 1, 1975.

The ordinance applies to skateboards and bicycles. It makes it unlawful for any person:

"Riding on or by means of a skateboard to go on an open roadway within the central traffic district (downtown areas) or in, upon or around city parking lots and structures when signs...have been erected, except (when) ...sponsored, operated or controlled by the City Recreation Department."

The central traffic district is bounded by El Camino Real, Baldwin Avenue, Delaware Street and Fifth Avenue.

In Burlingame, an ordinance passed Dec. 1, 1975, regulates skateboards, coasters and similar devices as follows:

"Use of skateboards, coasters and similar devices restricted:

"No person shall at any time ride on or operate a coaster, skateboard or similar device on the sidewalk or streets or any public or privately owned parking lot in any retail, commercial district of the city."

The city has posted small signs on poles in the area's periphery.

The International Skateboard Association lists five basic rules of skateboarding:

- Obey all city and state traffic rules.
- Always wear protective gear.
- Don't skateboard at night.
- Don't ride faster than your ability.
- Conduct a visual technical check of the board.

To this Dr. Lachner adds: anticipate potential problems — look for manhole covers or other impedance such as debris; remember a skateboard has no brakes; don't skate on steep hills; know how to fall properly.

commercial and industrial development on Bayshore Boulevard and 6.21 acres of open space in the form of two parks on Hillside Boulevard.

Originally, VA had planned 10 acres of public parks. However, Follett said the revision to 6.21 acres "represents what the planner and architects think is the best use of the land." In drawing up the plan, they attempted to locate parks near all the residential units, he said.

The neighborhood commercial center, VA said, will serve the immediate residents of the mountain slope. Tentative plans, Grudzinski said, are for a family-type atmosphere — perhaps "mom and pop" type stores, with owners living on upper floors.

Follett said VA is studying an "Italian village concept" for that shopping center.

He also said earlier plans for an elementary school on the site have been scratched, since it now appears local school districts, as a result of declining enrollment, will be able to accommodate children who live on the mountain.

Both commissioners and councilmen expressed concern about the traffic that the project will generate in already congested areas. Follett said traffic problems will be studied in-depth at the site development stage.

Decision on Transit Plan Due

By BOB HEMINGWAY

A decision on a recommended Peninsula corridor transit plan calling for the upgrading of Southern Pacific passenger service and supplemental bus service will be made by the Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC) at its Dec. 15 meeting in Oakland.

The plan, known as Alternate B, was recommended by the Peninsula Transit Alternatives Project Committee (PENTAP) by a 7 to 2 vote last Friday in Redwood City.

Consultant and MTC engineers said during the year-long study which culminated in the 7-2 vote that extension of BART between San Francisco and San Jose probably would provide the best and most efficient service in the effort to take the commuter and inter-county traveler off the freeways.

However, an estimated cost of more than $1 billion to extend BART, along with buy-in costs and undoubted opposition of voters to approve BART in San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, resulted in selection of an alternate which the engineers say will preserve a rail corridor and provide for possible extension of BART or some alternative rail system in the future.

The recommended plan would leave SP providing the primary corridor transit service on the Peninsula.

This could result, however, in litigation unless negotiations and possible intervention by the State Public Utilities Commission can prevail upon SP to join in the upgrading plan. SP has made it emphatic during the past decade that it wants out of the passenger service, which it terms a financial loser.

However, proponents of upgrading contend that better and more frequent service supplemented by and coordinated with strategic express and shuttle bus service will attract patronage.

The recommended plan would provide SP service at close headways in both directions during peak periods and at reasonable intervals consistent with two-track operation during off-peak and evening service.

Bus shuttle service would be provided to both San Francisco International and San Jose airports and to the industrial areas around them.

Wally Dela Barre, project manager for Daniel, Mann, Johnson & Mendenhall (DMJM), the consultant engineering firm which prepared the diverse plans from which Alternate B was selected, said bus shuttle service would be provided from either the San Bruno or Millbrae SP stations.

It is not impossible that a new station would be located opposite the airport access road as the transfer point for bus shuttle service, he said. However, further studies will be needed to determine that feasibility, Dela Barre added.

In addition, bus shuttle service would be provided at the SP's Fourth and Townsend street station in San Francisco to provide transportation to the city's major employment and shopping areas.

The plan does not recommend extension of SP service further into the city to the Transbay Terminal, Dela Barre said, because the $40 million cost is too expensive unless there is a long-term commitment from SP to continue passenger service.

Alternate B, with an initial $105.5 million capital improvement cost, calls for major SP station improvements along the line to permit boarding and alighting for trains operating on both tracks at the same time.

Also, to facilitate rail service, the plan calls for a "push-pull" operation which would provide cab control at either end of the train, alleviating the necessity to uncouple the engine at the end of the line and shuttle it to the other end of the train for the return trip.

Supplementing the rail operation would be an express bus operation on Junipero Serra Freeway (Interstate 280) during peak periods and on Bayshore Freeway for off-peak service.

Both bus services would connect with trunk and branch service.

Dela Barre said that peak period service would provide transfer to BART at Balboa Park in San Francisco and also would continue to the Transbay Terminal. The Balboa Park station also would provide easy access to the Muni system and to western San Francisco.

Access to the Transbay Terminal would be either via surface streets from the Interstate 280 off-ramps or via exclusive bus ramps connecting the freeway and the terminal ramp system.

If the PENTAP recommended plan is approved by the MTC, as expected, it will go to the state legislature, which mandated development of a Peninsula corridor transit plan and its submission by Jan. 1, 1977.

Health Plans

Personnel from the San Mateo County Health Department will speak on projected plans for health studies in North County at a meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 16 at the Daly City Council chambers.

Rugh Kruidenier, of the League of Women Voters, will be the moderator. The public is invited to attend.

Jury Deliberates Just 25 Minutes

A jury took only 25 minutes Wednesday to convict John T. McGoldrick, 20, of Pacifica, of attempted robbery of the all-night 7-Eleven market at Bayshore and Toyon Avenue in Burlingame.

Prosecutor Thomas A. Blake presented evidence with showed that police apprehended McGoldrick as he was leaving the store and a video-tape taken by the store's camera of McGoldrick's actions. The incident was last Aug. 3.

The defendant, who testified he simply wanted to buy some items, faces sentencing Dec. 24 by Superior Court Judge W. Howard Hartley, who presided over the 1½-day trial.

It was testified that McGoldrick had said he had a weapon and had ordered the clerk to give him money. The clerk sounded an alarm into the police department.

Serramonte Students With the 'Fonz'

Tomorrow night from 7:30 to 8:30 on channel 7, you will have the chance to see eight Serramonte students on television with the "Fonz" of "Happy Days."

George Jackson, Rusty Jurgenson, Kitti Milani, Ray Marroquin, Mylene Schwimmer, Angie Tate, and former students Kathy Mervis and Amy Schwimmer, were among 40 Bay Area teenagers who participated in the filming of a KGO television special entitled "Who's Got Cool?" hosted by Henry Winkler.

THE BEGINNING of this event was in June, when an announcement was run in the school bulletin saying that anyone interested in being on a television show about teenagers could sign up for an interview. The interviews were held in July by members of KGO. Students were chosen to speak in a rap session and to have extra acting parts.

Because of considerable editing, exactly what will be shown tomorrow, and how much the Serramonte kids will be seen, is not known. The show will consist primarily of a rap session about teenage alcoholism, pregnancy, suicide, and the future, along with short documentaries, interviews with people on the street, and simulation of a '50s hamburger joint, a '60s teenager hangout, and a '70s health food restaurant.

Many people often have a desire to meet famous television or movie stars and see what they are really like. Well, when the Serramonte students met Henry Winkler, he was just a "famous," nice, normal guy.

Henry made sure that he got to know everyone. He joked around on the set, gave out pictures and autographs, and even remembered everybody's name.

The Serramonte students spent two days with Henry Winkler. These will be days never forgotten, because not only did they meet a star and get filmed for TV, but they also became friends with kids from other schools, as well as better friends with each other.

Why not share in some of their excitement and watch tomorrow night when some Serramonte Regents appear with the "Fonz."

DON'T FORGET — tonight is the Serramonte Fine Arts annual Winter Concert and Potluck Dinner. Dinner will be served at 6:30 in the Serramonte cafeteria, and the concert will begin at 8 in the Serramonte Little Theater.

The concert features the Serramonte Jazz Band, Concert Band, and Concert Choir. The cost is $2.50, and the proceeds go to the Debbie Burrows Memorial Scholarship Fund.

THE SERRAMONTE FALL Athletic Award Banquet was held last Tuesday night in the Serramonte Cafeteria. The banquet honored all fall athletes and gave special recognition to those voted by their teammates as Most Valuable Player (MVP) and Most Improved Player (MIP).

The winners for the Varsity Girls' Volleyball Team were Jerry Valencia, MVP, and Adele Rendon, MIP. For the Junior Varsity Volleyball Team, the winners were Vicki Parker, MVP, and Joyce Thompson, MIP.

The winners for the Girls' Tennis Team were Karen Madrieres, MVP, and Robin Moeller, MIP.

Congratulations to all the fine athletes who were recognized at the banquet. The winners for the boys' team will be reported later.

SOME NEW ASSIGNMENTS have been made at Serramonte. Bernadette Crnich, a substitute teacher, will be the advisor for student government and other student activities.

John Angeli, also a substitute teacher, will be supervising student buses in the morning and after school. Both Ms. Crnich and Angeli have been appointed to their positions while Dion DuBois is acting principal.

Good-bye and good luck to art teacher Mrs. Mary Heeb, who will be leaving Serramonte on maternity leave after six years of teaching. Taking Mrs. Heeb's place will be Mrs. Jody Dore, a former Serramonte art teacher.

Seven Alcoholism Programs Funded

Seven new alcoholism programs to be financed from an additional $106,000 allocated to the county by the State Office of Alcoholism were approved Tuesday by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

County Director of Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett recommended the action, which has the support of Alcoholism Advisory Board.

Pickett said that the state plans to increase the augmented funds to $185,000 next fiscal year.

The new programs which will be undertaken include:

- Hiring a full-time public health educator by the National Council on Alcoholism to work with youth groups, schools and professional organizations.
- Establishment by the National Council on Alcoholism of a film library to serve all alcohol programs in the county.
- Development by Pyramid Alternatives in Pacifica of media material (video cassettes or films) to use in training and community programs.
- Development in the South San Francisco Unified School District of a program to train teams in the "Berkeley Project" method of developing g an alcohol education curriculum in an elementary school, hopefully as a pilot project for county-wide implementation.
- Establishemd of an identification program to be operated by Little House in Menlo Park to develop innovative methods of conducting outreach to elderly persons in the county suffering from alcoholism.
- Replacement of furnishings at the Women's Rehabilitation Association Recovery Home, Laurel House, in San Mateo.
- Funding of three non-residential treatment programs, including establishment of a new outpatient treatment program in the South County area south of San Carlos, establishment of an alcoholism outreach or treatment program aimed at ethnic minority persons in the county, and hiring of an additional counselor at Pyramid Alternatives.

SM County Quake Drills Praised

By JANET REINKA

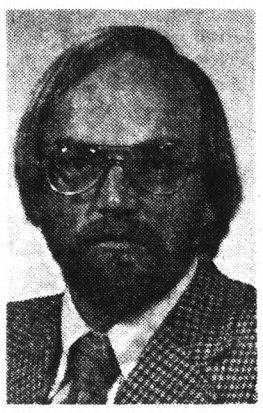
A major earthquake in California is inevitable, and San Mateo County is doing a good job of getting ready for it, the top expert on earthquakes for the U.S. Geological Survey said Friday in San Francisco.

Dr. Robert M. Hamilton, chief of the Office of Earthquake Studies for the USGS, spoke to the members of the Commonwealth Club at a luncheon at the Empress of China restaurant.

Hamilton said it is impossible to predict when or where a major quake will hit, but the most important thing people can do is take the threat seriously and plan how best to meet it.

And San Mateo County is doing just that, he said, mapping out areas likely to sustain the most damage, putting together preparedness plans and staging earthquake drills.

Hamilton said scientists are closely watching the long San Andreas Fault that arches down the state, particularly since it was discovered early this year that the land northeast of Los Angeles has risen up to a foot over the last 15 years. Such an uplift has been known to precede some earthquakes but he said there is still no reason to predict a quake anytime soon.



Dr. Robert Hamilton

A Stanford geologist studying rock layers in a trench dug along the fault near Los Angeles this week reported evidence of 11 seismic events over the last 2,000 years occurring approximately once every 175 years.

The last major quakes at the two ends of the fault struck Los Angeles in 1857 and San Francisco in 1906, but Hamilton said he doubts that scientists will ever be able to accurately forecast quakes.

Nevertheless, the inactivity along the fault itself makes a fault that much more likely.

"The two sections of the fault are locked and not being relieved," he said. "Strain areas are accumulating. When the forces are too strong for the rocks of the earth's outer shell, sudden slip occurs, and the ground shakes."

When the quake finally hits, it "will indeed be a disaster," he said.

Hardest hit will be areas such as San Francisco's Chinatown, full of older buildings of unreinforced masonry walls, some with weak openings and numerous overhead parapets, he said.

Hamilton also predicted that areas such as Foster City, Redwood Shores and parts of Alameda which sit on bay fill, have a much higher risk of sustaining serious damage than communities on bedrock.

"Damage in 1906 was worse in areas created by dumping material in the bay," he said' "although there is a difference between engineered fill and dumped fill. The greatest intensity (was) on poorly consolidated material."

Although San Francisco's modern buildings have incorporated recent earthquake-resistant techniques, the older buildings will sustain significant damage, he said.

But to raze Chinatown and uproot residents, as well as lose the tourist dollar, would be a political and social hot potato, he said. None of the solutions would be easy, he said.

The best thing that individuals and local government can do to cope with earthquake is to "recognize that sooner or later, it will come."

He said cities should study zoning regulations and other ways of requiring earthquake-resistant building design. And individuals should pressure public officials until they do.

The average person should take normal disaster-prepardedness steps, he said.

- Find out how to turn off the gas on heaters. You may be able to prevent a fire.
- Stock your home with a flashlight, first-aid kit and a supply of canned food.
- Remove heavy objects from the walls.
- Get beds away from plate glass windows.

If an earthquake strikes, Hamilton said, you should not go outdoors but rather get under a table or a doorway and sit it out.

"You are safest in your home," he said.

Hamilton cited Portola Valley's preparedness plan as an example of what can be done when a city — in this case one that sits astride the San Andreas Fault — decides not to panic but to take steps to meet the inevitable disaster. The geologist, who now lives in the East but plans to move back to California to do research, said his colleagues frequently ask why he would risk moving back to the Bay Area, knowing what he does about earthquakes.

"The benefits of this area far outweigh the liabilities of earthquakes," he said.

Hamilton said that study and planning can greatly reduce the losses in a major earthquake, especially since prediction is unlikely to ever become an exact science.

"The real challenge lies in devising solutions to the social, economic and political problems involved in applying this emerging technology," he said' "solutions that will make California a safer, and even more enjoyable place to live and work."

Higher Pay for Few Angers School Group

Clerical and maintenance employes of the Jefferson Union High School District are upset that several of their colleagues have been awarded salary increases in excess of what most classified (non-teaching) workers have received under terms of a contract signed last September.

John Hayes of the California School Employes Association, representing many of the district's classified workers, told trustees Tuesday night the CSEA formally opposes the "big raises for a selected few."

Hayes presented the board with a petition signed by 184 clerical and maintenance employes in the district who indicated they supported in total a letter of protest sent to Dist. Supt. Floyd Gonella by Mary Highland, a central office receptionist and a member of the CSEA.

In her letter to Gonella, dated Nov. 16, Mrs. Highland stated, "Many of the classified employes of the . . . district are extremely uspet over what is considered to be very preferential treatment given a few employes after contracts were agreed to for the majority of the classified staff."

Last September, two associations CSEA and the American Federation of State and Municipal Employes (AFSME) representing the district classified workers, signed contracts guaranteeing workers a 5 per cent salary increase.

Shortly after the contract-signing, the board, acting on a recommendation from Gonella, granted additional wage increases to nine classified and confidential employes.

These employes included the building and grounds supervisor, food service director, budget office/bookkeeper, secretary to the deputy superintendent, secretary to the associate superintendent for business and operations, secretary to the associate superintendent of instruction and curriculum, secretary to the superintendent, transportation superintendent and the accounting clerk.

They all received salary raises ranging from 7 per cent to 20 per cent. This was accomplished by adjusting the employes' pay steps.

"We find it hard to believe," Mrs. Highland wrote Gonella, ". . . that not all employes are being treated basically the same as far as salary increases.

"Damage to employe morale has been severe," Mrs. Highland added. "No doubt you have noticed the pall of gloom which has hung over the district office much of the last week and a half, and I understand it is the same out in the schools among the classified employes.

"We used to be happy employes, but now people are shocked and appalled that you would do something like this for a chosen few. People now feel they have no incentive if this is the way you do things."

Ruth Boudinot, president of the board, told Hayes that the trustees would respond in some way to the CSEA position, probably at the next board meeting.

After the meeting, Hayes acknowledged that there was little the CSEA could do to force the district to correct the "inequities" this year, but he said the CSEA would take a hard line on contract negotiations next year.

Gonella defended the salary raises. He said the nine workers, some of whom he claimed are confidential employes and therefore not represented by CSEA, were at pay scale steps lower than the same workers in other school districts.

"The district has the right to determine at what range (or salary step) its classified employes should be," Gonella said. "We found there was an inequity affecting nine employes in our district and we took moves to correct it."

"This was an individual, across-the-board assessment," he added, "not confined to a certain group or department."

Mrs. Highland had argued in her letter that there are many underpaid jobs in the district and if the district was to start correcting salary inequities it should do so at all levels of the pay scale, not just at the higher levels.

Gonella vowed he would continue to assess pay scale inequities at all wage levels.

Harbor District Chief Hits LAFCO

The executive officer of the San Mateo County Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) has been accused by a County Harbor District official of "half-truths and misrepresentations" in statements concerning the district's efforts to obtain a $2.3 million grant for construction at Pillar Point Harbor.

In a letter to the commission, Charles J. Boerio, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, expresses the district's "vigorous exception to the nature of the comments from your executive officer (B. Sherman Coffman) to the Association of Bay Area Governments concerning the application by the district to the Economic Development Administration for grants of $2.3 million for construction at Pillar Point Harbor."

In his letter responding to ABAG's request for comments on the Harbor District's application for the grant funds, Coffman stated:

"For many years the matter of an independent, single-purpose, countywide special district administering harbor services has been a major concern to many political bodies and citizens in this county.

"Since the county itself already administers a marina at Coyote Point, many cities and citizens of the county have felt that the county would be very capable of assuming the responsibility of the San Mateo County Harbor District."

Subsequent to Coffman's Dec. 1 letter, the Board of Supervisors voted to dissolve the Harbor District, scheduling a November 1977 election on the matter.

In his letter to LAFCO, Boerio notes that the Board of Supervisors "has recognized the desirability of the Pillar Point Harbor project and has attempted to separate the project from the dissolution issue.

"By placing the dissolution election on the ballot in November 1977, the district will be able to proceed with the project and hopefully take advantage of the EDA grant . . .

"Your executive officer is certainly entitled to present factual comments to ABAG about any project in San Mateo County. However, the half-truths and misrepresentations contained in his letter to ABAG are grossly irresponsible and could prove very costly to the people of this county."

Boerio concludes by stating that "We trust that your agency will take some steps to insure more professional and responsible actions by your executive officer in the future."

DC Parking Lot Lease IS Renewed

Daly City got a new lease on its 250-space parking lot, west of the Bay Area Rapid Transit station, from the San Francisco Planning Commission this week.

The lot is used as a supplemental parking area for BART riders and is available on a daily, or monthly, fee basis.

San Francisco Zoning Administrator Robert W. Passmore asked that the commission deny Daly City's request for an extension of its use permit for the lot, but the board unanimously agreed to grant a one year extension — to Dec. 31, 1977 — of the permit.

The lot is primarily inside the boundaries of Daly City. However, the lot's entrance is in San Francisco.

Passmore argued that the location of the lot is adjacent to homes and it would have an adverse effect on these homes, and on traffic in the surrounding area.

Although 36 homeowners in the area were notified of the hearing, none appeared in opposition.

Outgoing San Francisco Chief Administrative Officer Tom Mellon, who is also a voting member of the Planning Commission, said the parking problem around BART is a two-city problem and San Francisco should join with Daly City in trying to solve this problem.

Mellon said Daly City is helping to finance the new multi-level parking garage at BART, and should not be penalized for the lack of tax support for the transit district by the rest of San Mateo County.

SF Inspectors Plead Not Guilty

Two San Francisco narcotics squad police inspectors and a federal narcotics agent pleaded not guilty before Superior Court Judge Walter Calcagno Thursday to charges ranging from perjury to stealing money from arrested suspects.

Daly City Det. John Kirby, named an unindicted co-conspirator in the case, did not appear at the arraignment hearing held in San Francisco.

Assistant Inspectors Ronald Limneos and Patrick Wolfe, along with Treasury Agent Robert Boatright, pleaded not guilty to all counts against them.

Limneos, a former narcotics detail officer, was charged with 13 counts, including perjury, gun theft, conspiracy and illegally dealing in heroin.

Wolfe, a former undercover agent with the drug squad, pleaded not guilty to one count of perjury. Boatright plead not guilty to two counts of perjury.

Indictments against the three men were handed down earlier this month by a San Francisco County Grand Jury following 13 weeks of testimony by more than 50 witnesses.

A Bill to End Some Benefits

Bills to disallow unemployment benefits to college students and to provide for imprisonment of arson solicitors have been introduced by Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redwood City.

The first measure, AB 28, follows an earlier attempt by Arnett to reverse a State Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board ruling which allows college students to collect unemployment benefits even though they refuse jobs which interfere with their classes.

Arnett said that the first try to reverse the decision through legislation was defeated because state officials thought that a court would reverse the decision. But instead, it was upheld.

The Redwood City legislator said that the law does not provide for punishment of persons to solicit acts of arson, so he introduced a bill which would provide for a year in prison and/or a $5,000 fine for those convicted.

County's Oldest Succumbs

Funeral services were held Friday for Callie Bradley, believed to have been San Mateo County's oldest resident, who died Saturday at Chope Hospital.

She was 114 years old.

Born in Florida, she and her mother were sold as slaves and taken to Arkansas during the Civil War. After the war, she and her husband farmed in Arkansas for many years. The couple had no children.

At the age of 108, she came to California to live with her niece, Alvanie Dawson in East Palo Alto.

The Friday services began at 1 p.m. at the Jones Mortuary, 660 Donohoe St., East Palo Alto. Interment at Skyline Memorial Park.

Filing Period Opens For School Boards

The filing period for the March 8 school board elections throughout the county will open today at Election Division of the San Mateo County clerk's office.

January 9 is the filing deadline.

Anyone 18 years or older may file for election in the school district in which he or she is a resident.

SSF Marina Plans Win Backing of Council

By JANET PARKER

The sails were raised Wednesday night on South San Francisco's $6.6 million marina expansion plan when the City Council voted 3-2 to seek construction permits from four state agencies.

One councilman who voted against proceeding with the project, William Barba, said the marina plan should be left up to a city-wide ballot proposition.

"From what I hear tonight, there is a lot of 'if's,'" Borba said at the end of a 4½-hour hearing. "It's too premature for us to act on this tonight."

Early in the evening, resident John Falsarella made that same plea.

After the vote, he said he will return to his organization, the United Taxpayers Association, and discuss whether or not they should intervene by seeking a ballot measure on their own.

Also voting against the motion was Emanuele Damonte, who said he didn't have enough information to make a decision yet.

Parks and Recreation Director Dick Milkovich said the marina, when completed, will be the largest on the West San Francisco Bay.

The existing Oyster Point marina was constructed in 1962 and the city has been trying since 1972 to expand and modernize the facility.

The city has secured a $6.6 million loan from the Department of Navigation and Ocean Development for the construction of the marina and various facilities.

A $200,000 fishing pier is expected to be funded by grants from the state Department of Fish and Game and the U. S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

The council has reopened negotiations with the San Mateo County Harbor District for a $250,000 loan for boat launching ramps.

Milkovich called the meeting of the council planning commission and parks and recreation commission to present the status of the marina project, and to clear the air about the financial stability of both the present and proposed marinas.

South San Francisco residents — many of them boat owners and marina tenants — packed the meeting and listened to a presentation by the marina architects, Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall of Redwood City.

The firm spent more than three hours explaining the marina project, including a detailed report of soils problems and why it will cost $750,000 to control the flow of soil debris, called leachate, into the bay.

The expanded marina will include approximately 350 new boat slips and the rehabilitation of the 280 existing slips.

Besides the fishing pier at the point, and the launching ramps, facilities will include a marine store, boat repair yard, dry storage area, fuel dock, two restaurants, a coffee shop, retail shops, and the yacht club.

However, the only new facilities that will be covered by loans to the city are the new harbor master office, restrooms and the expanded beach and picnic facilities. Other planned uses will be financed by the tenants who will lease the structures.

Consultants explained that the wooden floats of the existing marina are deteriorating, the parking lot is in need of major repairs, and the landfill the marina is built on has caused severe problems with the Water Quality Control Board.

The city must now seek permits from WQCB, Stand Lands Commission, Army Corps of Engineers, and the Bay Conservation Development Commission to proceed with construction.

City officials, and the Public, c, fired questions at Milkovich and the architects and other consultants. Many focused on the financing of the marina and its economic stability once it is constructed.

Milkovich said the marina — when completed — will have a market value of over $10 million and an assessed valuation of $2.6 million.

One question repeatedly asked was the effect of the marina on the entire city financial structure, should it fail to support itself through berth fees.

Milkovich explained that, should the marina fail financially, the state only has the right to take over the marina for payment of the loan. The city, he said, is not obligated to make loan payments beyond the amount of income available from the marina.

"In the event of default, the state has the option to take over operation of the marina until funds are recovered," he said. That, he added, has never happened to a marina project in the state of California.

Such a default, he said, would not bankrupt the city. City Finance Director Bill Anderson also said that loan default would not harm the city's credit rating in future project loans — except perhaps future marina loans.

Milkovich, added, however, that if the city backs out of the loan now, it will owe the state $134,000 in past interest on the loans received to date.

The city has estimated that boat berth rates will be up to $2.25 per foot by 1980-81 to support the marina. Current fees are $1.25 a foot.

Borba asked whether there is a guarantee that the project will be profitable. Neither Milkovich nor the consultants would guarantee that.

I don't think anybody is going to guarantee anything to us," said Milkovich.

Stumbling Block on Portolas

The Pacifica City Council's attempt to rezone a prime piece of land to recreation-commercial and prevent development of an apartment complex or anything else hit a stumbling block at the Planning Commission meeting this week.

The commission voted 4-3 to delay its consideration of the rezoning and its recommendation to the council until Jan. 3.

As a result, the council will be unable to hold a public hearing on the proposed rezoning and take action of its own until sometime next month.

Voting against the continuation were Commissioners Lee Forester, Joe Grenna and John Lewis.

The postponement was just another complication in the plans for the Portolas, a 97-unit apartment complex proposed between Roberts Road and Highway 1.

The commission's action, however, is actually a point in favor of the development.

If the council had been able to rezone the property before Jan. 1, the developers of the Portolas would have been unable to seek a building permit to construct the complex.

At the same time, the council also voted 3-2 to begin rezoning proceedings

(wheelbases under 100 inches)

Check the facts:

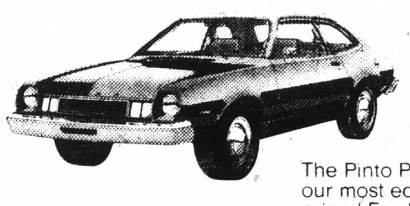
1. Low price.

Ford's Pinto Pony starts out with a low base sticker price of just $3,099 (excluding title, taxes, destination charges and required California equipment).

PINTO PONY	$3,099
CHEVETTE COUPE	$3,225†
VEGA COUPE	$3,248†

†With rebates. Chevette $3,025. Vega $3,048.

So even with Chevy's temporary rebates, Pinto is sticker-priced only $51 over Vega and $74 over Chevette. But see how Pinto's extra value continues for years.



The Pinto Pony: our most economically priced Ford Pinto.

2. High resale value.

Pinto consistently has high resale value. In fact, at retail prices, an average two-, three- or four-year-old base Pinto sold for more than a similar Chevy Vega, even though Vega is usually sticker-priced higher than a new Pinto. (Pinto was $66 lower than Vega in 1973, $22 higher in 1974, and $17 lower in 1975.) Compare Pinto's resale prices to Vega's.

Used Car Retail Prices, December 1976

MODEL YEAR	VEGA	PINTO	PINTO ADVANTAGE
1973	$1,350	$1,600	$250
1974	$1,750	$2,025	$275
1975	$2,150	$2,450	$300

Source: Pacific Southwest N A D A Used Car Guide

Even with rebates, most small cars have a tough time beating Pinto's built-in and lasting value.

3. Excellent mileage and performance.

Pinto still has excellent mileage ratings. Even though Pinto's powerful cast-iron engine — proven in millions of driver miles — gives it the power for climbing steep hills, passing quickly and entering highways confidently.

34 mpg highway | 24 mpg city

EPA estimates. With 2.3 liter engine and manual transmission. Your actual mileage will vary depending on your car's condition, optional equipment, and how and where you drive.

Pinto also has a wide track for a comfortable, stable ride. And Pinto has a sporty suspension system and rack-and-pinion steering for precise, responsive handling.

FORD

When America needs a better idea, Ford puts it on wheels.

4. Scheduled maintenance reduced $353.

- Over the past four years, more than 75% of the scheduled maintenance requirements on Pinto's 4-cylinder engine have been reduced or eliminated. That's an estimated reduction in costs of $353.
- So today, the base Pinto's average scheduled service is estimated at only $186 for the first 50,000 miles.

Based on Ford's Service Labor Time Standards Manual, a $13.50 labor rate, and suggested retail parts prices in effect 8/31/76.

Dr. Pickett Releases Report on Hospital

By BOB HEMINGWAY

The official report of San Mateo County Director of Public Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett, one confirming the recent article in The Times that he is recommending closure of Chope Community Hospital as an acute medical and surgical facility, was released today.

The 66-page document, recommending public medical care programs for the county for the next decade, will be reviewed by the County Board of Supervisors next Thursday at a meeting in the Hall of Justice, Redwood City, beginning at 9 a.m.

In his summary, Pickett makes five specific recommendations:

• Complete the decentalization of acute inpatient medical, surgical, maternity and pediatrics care to other available acute care hospitals in the county.

• Continue to operate a substantial general medical outpatient clinic in the central part of the county, and a family health center in Redwood City.

• Continue the contractual relationship with the Drew Health Center in East Palo Alto and develop similar contracts with Mary's Help Hospital and the Guadalupe Health Center in North County.

• Expand the agreements with selected physician specialists for specialty care to be provided in their offices, in the two proposed clinics, in general hospitals and at other locations as necessary.

• Develop plans to provide specialized inpatient mental health, rehabilitation and skilled nursing care under medical supervision at Chope Hospital.

His recommendations involve a substantial renovation at Chope Hospital to better accommodate the present acute inpatient psychiatric program and the rehabilitation and skilled nursing programs partly provided now at Chope, but more extensively available at Crystal Springs Rehabilitation Center (CSRC).

The report states that most of the buildings at CSRC "are in the same unfortunate condition as those at Chope, and no bond issue exists to rebuild at that site."

The county has available $6,275,000 in unsold bonds for renovation of Chope, a measure approved by voters in 1965.

As acute inpatient, medical, surgical and pediatric care is moved to community hospitals, Chope Hospital can be renovated and Crystal Springs patients and services would be relocated at Chope, "a much more suitable location," Pickett says.

The health and welfare director states that, "Chope Hospital would change, but continue to function, meeting the specialized needs of a group of patients who could not be as well served in other institutions.

"Instead of a traditional emergency room, there would be a crisis intervention center to respond more fully to the specialized needs of the mentally ill, the alcoholic and the drug abuser."

Pickett reports that the transitions and changes, except for the necessary renovations at Chope, can be completed in one year's time or less.

"With the formation of a special Manpower Task Force it is likely that most of the county employes who would be displaced by these changes can continue their respective careers either in county employment or with other agencies," Pickett says.

He makes no recommendation concerning the future use of the buildings at CSRC.

Pickett states in his report that, "San Mateo County, like many other agencies, has not yet fully reacted to the changes of the last decade.

"We believe it is now time to take the next step in the continued evolution of the county's medical care problems — constantly seeking to assure that those essential services not otherwise available are available for those not otherwise provided for."

Pickett is recommending that the county "now more fully recognize these changes by relinquishing those services which can be provided by others and by improving the county's ability to provide those essential services which are not otherwise available.

"This can be done by providing care in a renovated Chope Hospital for those who are mentally ill, those in need of long-term rehabilitation and those in need of skilled nursing care under close medical supervision."

His recommendations, Pickett says, are based upon eight findings stemming from the year-long South County Decentralized Health Care Demonstration Project and its comparison with a centralized health care program:

• The demonstration project has successfully demonstrated the feasibility of providing access to needed medical care provided that the county (a) continues to operate a substantial outpatient prggram, (b) pays a reasonable price for purchased services, (c) continues to provide patient support through social services, community workers and public health nursing and, (d) continues to monitor the acceptability and the quality of purchased services, both inpatient and outpatient.

• The continuing need to provide acute, inpatient medical care for patients who are dependent, in whole or in part, on the county for such care is estimated to require an average of only 36 acute hospital beds per day.

There is a working surplus of 643 unused acute beds and a potentially unused capacity of 1,117 acute beds in the county's hospitals.

The two general hospitals (Stanford and Sequoia) involved in the demonstration project have shown their willingness and ability to accept the responsibilities for providing acute inpatient care for county patients, and there is adequate reason to believe that the other community hospitals in the county will participate in the same supportive fashion.

• There is a continuing need for publicly supported inpatient care for the more severely disturbed psychiatric patient, the patient with complex physical and social problems require long-term rehabilitation and some patients who require skilled nursing care under medical supervision.

These services require 120 to 150 beds. It is the opinion of the department that the private sector is unable and unwilling to adequately provide these services at this time, but a rebuilt Chope Hospital would appropriately serve this redefined mission in the years ahead.

• Both Chope Hospital and CSRC would need substantial capital investments if they were both to continue to function.

To continue to operate Chope Hospital as an acute general hospital would require a capital investment of $8,757,000 in 1976 dollars. Assuming that it would take at least three years to complete plans, obtain planning agency and state approval and begin construction, this cost would increase to $11.7 million. An informal review suggests that as much as $2-$4 million would be needed to modernize buildings at Crystal Springs.

• The decentralized system can operate at a net county cost of approximately $3.2 million a year.

Supervisors To Review Suggestions On Thursday

Possible Oil Pipeline Facility at Pacifica?

By JANET PARKER

A draft report of the Federal Energy Administration released in California Wednesday lists Pacifica and Moss Landing two of 32 possible sites for the distribution of Alaskan pipeline oil to points in the United States.

FEA Regional Administrator William Arntz in San Francisco said the report on the 32 sites is by no means a recommendation and is meant only as a list of alternatives for the consideration of oil companies.

Arntz said the report contains "good solid information a decision-maker can look at."

"We wouldn't want the citizens in Pacifica and Moss Landing to get up in arms about an offshore terminal when no one is even thinking of it at this time," Arntz said.

Unless an oil company proposes building a terminal off the coastline, Arntz said, one isn't likely to be built.

Some time next summer, oil tankers will begin sailing down the California coast with the first loads of crude oil from the Alaskan pipeline.

Just where that oil will be unloaded, no one seems to know. The state's refineries, energy officials say, probably will be able to handle only half of the 800,000 barrels of oil to be shipped down the coast daily.

Arntz said the FEA study is to help the federal government and industry in deciding how to handle the crude oil flow.

The administration, he said, started with 109 potential sites along the coast of British Columbia and Panama.

Reviewing only the environmental effects, Arntz said, the list was narrowed down to 32 sites, including Pacifica and Moss Landing.

"If someone was thinking of an offshore site as contrasted to one in San Fransco Bay, Pacifica would be a possibility," Arntz said.

Pacifica and Moss Landing were grouped with other sites in the Central California coastline, including Richmond, Arntz said.

The environmental characteristics of each groups of sites down the entire coast was evaluated for such factors as oil spill risk and impact on ecological, recreational and commercial activities, he said.

The advantages and disadvantages of sites in each area were listed, he said.

The only proposal being considered at this time is that of Standard Oil of Ohio to unload surpluses at Long Beach, also one of the sites included in the study.

Alan Coodley of the State Air Resources Board said his agency opposes that particular site because of the already excessive smog conditions in the Los Angeles basin.

The Air Resources Board, he said, is asking that Standard Oil consider another site — possibly the Morro Bay area of San Luis Obispo County, where a terminal could connect with the existing Southern California pipeline.

The Pacifica site, Goodley said, has been dropped from board consideration.

Arntz said the final report will be prepared by Feb. 1.

Le Pacini

That annual exercise in the meaningless — picking mythical all-star football teams — is in full swing, and the contradictions and absurdities are as prevalent as ever.

Worst one I've run across so far is the case of UCLA quarterback Jeff Dankworth, who made the first team Associated Press All-Coast team, but didn't even get an honorable mention in his own conference from the AP.

Ted Albrecht, an outstanding tackle for Cal for the past four years, was picked as a guard on the first team AP All American squad, but could then make only honorable mention on the United Press All American team, and as a tackle.

UCLA linebacker Jerry Robinson made the AP first team All American, but couldn't even make the second team of the UP selections. And another Bruin, defensive back Oscar Edwards, made the first team UP team — as if the UP was trying to show it had nothing against UCLA players — but couldn't get an honorable mention from AP.

There are others, I'm sure, but I got tired of looking.

Just so that you don't go on forever thinking that only Horace Stoneham and Spec Richardson have ever made bad trades, consider the case of the California Angels, who have now had to pay out millions for three above average baseball players in the free agent draft to atone for what they did to their team last year.

Seems that in 1975 the Angels set a record in stolen bases (220), which, of course, was shattered by Oakland's 341 in '76 (remember I wrote a year ago that there has never in baseball history been a correlation between success in stealing bases and success in winning games), but had the AL's lowest team batting average, fewest home runs, and were next to last in runs scored. And while their speed made them third in the league in triples, it couldn't do any better than make them next to last in doubles.

So the Angels decided to sacrifice some speed for power, and traded for third baseman and former AL home run champ (twice) Bill Melton, and our former own Bobby Bonds.

Well, the Angels did sacrifice some speed, as they stole only 126 bases this past season, which was only sixth best in the league. But they sacrificed even more power. They were not only again last in the league in batting, but their average dipped from .246 to .235. They did add eight home runs, but were still last in that department. They were even worse than the year before in run production, going from 628 to 550. They hit 15 more doubles but 18 fewer triples, for a lot less total bases and slugging average. And they were shut out, leading 18 times, as against 13 in '75.

Now, that's what you call real shrewd trading.

And that once again brings up the discussion in this space a couple of weeks ago about Spec Richardson's trading away of Joe Morgan when both were with Houston. You may remember that it was pointed out that Morgan was just a .250 hitter with Houston, and may never have been any better if he hadn't moved to Cincinnati. What was neglected because of space problems was the fact that probably most if not all of Morgan's difficulties arose from the way he was handled by manager Harry Walker.

Walker was, and is, a batting instructor of some note, with a philosophy of hitting to the off-field, especially if a player is small in stature. Walker would never allow Morgan to take his full rips because he felt that, basically, Morgan was too small to be a power hitter, and that he should take advantage of his speed by going the other way, beating out infield hits and legging doubles out of singles hit to the opposite field.

Aside from the fact that Morgan and Walker never got along personally, anyway, the point is that this was obviously not the way to handle Morgan's talents. And chances are that if Morgan had stayed at Houston, things wouldn't have changed. In other words, Richardson had nothing to do with the way Morgan was handled on the field.

One other point, which involves hindsight, etc. I distinctly remember that when Morgan was traded to the Reds in that multi-player deal, Cincy fans were irate, feeling that the Reds had given Houston the pennant by handing over Lee May, Tommy Helms and Jim Stewart.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: So-called "small college" teams shouldn't be called that. A more appropriate appellation, as Howard would say, would be "amateur college teams."

LOCAL NOTES:

Four San Francisco State players were named to the all-Far Western Conference first team: linebackers Forrest Hancock and Tommi Tyler and defensive lineman Leonard Johnson, along with running back Dan McCrone.

Defensive back Gary Medeiros was named to the second team, and center Keith Gustafson made honorable mention.

Gator coach Vic Rowen called this squad the best defensive team he's ever had at State. Unfortunately, the offense couldn't come near to matching up, so the Gators were nowhere near the FWC crown, a position which they dominated in the '60s, before campus riots scared prospects away and decimated the football program, which has yet to make a complete recovery.

Former Skyline College and South San Francisco basketball star Mason Larkin, a 5-11 junior guard, is now making good in an apparently revitalized program with St. Mary's.

SPECIAL MOMENTS IN SPORTS:

It had been at once one of the most hectic and frustrating, yet exciting, periods of Bob Lurie's life. First, San Francisco was about to lose the Giants after a cool, grey love affair with them had been rudely singed by a long breath of hot air from across the bay. And then super-fan Bob Lurie was about to lose the Giants because of a cold wind in Minneapolis.

Charley Finley's seemingly perennial champion Oakland A's had helped damage Giants' attendance apparently beyond repair, and the Giants were just about to be abducted by a foreign country when Lurie swooped in with $4 million in one hand and Bob Short, who had once owned the Texas Rangers, in the other hand.

But then, just when the deal seemed secure, after a judge had stayed an injunction to keep the Giants in San Francisco until Lurie had a chance to put a package together, Short injured his hip when he slipped on ice in Minneapolis, and was hospitalized.

Hospital food apparently got to Short, because while interned, he developed a new philosophy about how the partnership would work and decided that he wanted to run the entire operation rather than share responsibility with Lurie. Lurie said thanks, but no thanks, and now it was literally two and a quarter hours before the injunction expired, and Lurie was $4 million short of the deal, with not a partner in sight.

And then Lurie heard about a cattleman who was interested in the Giants. Eight phone calls to Bud Herseth in Arizona during the next two hours netted Lurie a partner. Less than 15 minutes before deadline time, Lurie called National League president Chub Feeney and told him that he, Lurie, was now representing the Giants. Feeney called the judge at about three minutes before the deadline and informed him that the league had accepted the new Giants' ownership.

Yes, it was actually that close.

And it was a very dramatic, special moment in sports.

Unbeaten Bulldogs Have What it Takes

'Going for Number One'

By TIM MENICUTCH
Post Correspondent

College of San Mateo basketball teams of the recent past have had thunder clouds hanging over their heads.

The cumulo-cirrus-stratus is still there this year, but the difference is a silver lining.

Following Monday night's 89-81 dismantling of previously unbeaten, second-ranked-in-the-state Alameda, and with high hopes for this week's prestigious Modesto Tournament, the lining could turn to gold.

The slim eight-point victory margin was deceptive. The Bulldogs were up by 17 with less than two minutes remaining when Coach Bobby Pounds pulled the first string.

"We literally blew them off the court," said an estatic Pounds. "Coming off this kind of win, we're going to be extremely tough to beat in the Modesto Tournament."

San Mateo will have to be, as they meet 1975-76 state champion Long Beach in the opening round Wednesday afternoon at 12:30. A loss would immediately dash any hopes for the tournament crown.

But "losing" has not yet entered the Bulldogs vocabulary. They've racked up a 6-0 record with impressive wins over highly-regarded Contra Costa, Menlo, Fresno and now Alameda.

"We have experience now and we're playing as a team," said second-year 6-7 frontliner Mike Wilson, who scored a career-high 35 points. "Instead of just taking the ball down and shooting, we're looking for the open man. We're no longer taking the court as five individuals; we're going out there as one basketball team."

Wilson, who receives as many scholarship offers from top universities as teenage girls do phone calls, has regained the form that put him atop the Golden Gate Conference in scoring last year before low grades brought his season to an abrupt end midway through the schedule.

"I learned a lot from that," said Wilson. "I let my teammates down. The experience has had a tendency to make me work that much harder."

Wilson worked hard last night. He connected on 80 per cent of his floor shots in the first half and 13 of 20 for the game. Wilson was also a tower on the boards, snatching 13 rebounds, and showed vast improvement in his weakest category — free throw shooting — making 11 of 13.

Steady performer Maurice Pittman teamed with Wilson on the boards, grabbing 13 and adding 15 points.

Pittman often gets second billing behind Wilson, but doesn't even notice. "Anybody can come off the bench and pick up the pace on this team. We have so many fine players that can do the job," said Pittman. "Everybody's going to have their game. Tonight it was Mike, next game it could be somebody else and someone else after that."

Guard-forward Ron Jackson had his finest all-around game of the year. Along with several shot blocks, Jackson totaled 15 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

Earlier in the year, Jackson had a strong desire to play ball elsewhere. "I thought we were going to have a lot of guys up here who'd want to take every shot. It's not that way at all, though. Everybody wants to play as a team. I'm glad I stayed."

An inability to pass 12 units of classwork has destroyed Bulldog teams the last two years and has already cost CSM valuable playmaking guard Herb Wilson this year.

Freshman John Nichols, who was named to the all-Tournament of Champions team last year for San Francisco's Balboa High, and returnee Dennis Saddler are now sharing the duty.

Nichols has shown signs of greatness, but at times his inexperience has been evident. Midway through the first half Alameda started a full court press that gave young Nichols some problems.

"I was trying to be too cool instead of concentrating and playing harder," he said. "It's been difficult making this club as a freshman, but the depth and unity we have has made it a lot easier."

Entering last night's contest the Bulldogs were ranked fifth in the state. With the win and a strong showing in the Modesto tourney that rating will undoubtedly climb.

"We're not pulling any strings. We're going for number one," said Pounds.

Sports And Recreation

Tie in Three-Man Hunch League

The Adult 3-Man Hunch League, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, has completed four weeks of league play and, in the Open Division, there is a three way tie for first place. In the six-foot and under Division, six teams are bunched together for the four playoff spots.

The Birds, Jaguars and Sportsman are all tied, with 3-1 records, for first place, as a result of this week's play. The Jaguars climbed into a tie by defeating the previously unbeaten Sportsmen 40-17. Tom Courtney led all scorers with 17 points and Mike Murphy tallied 12 points to pace the Jaguars. Don Banford scored 12 points for the Sportsmen.

After their opening game loss to the Sportsmen, the Birds have won three straight games and, coupled with the Sportsmen's loss, are tied for first place. This week the Birds flew by the No-Stars 40-17. All three of the Birds finished in double figures. Steve Saks had a game high 16 points. Mike Jones 14 points and Les LeTourveau added 10 points. John Frazier led the No-Stars with 9 points.

The Dirty Shirts evened their record at 2-2 by defeating the City Slickers 40-27. Ralph Sands' 17 points and Dan Hallford's 16 points paced the win for the Dirty Shirts. Tom Miller was the high scorer for the City Slickers with 14 points.

In the six-foot and Under Division, Serra Stereo remained unbeaten and in undisputed first place, as they squeezed by If 40-35. Tony Passanisi, of Serra Stereo, led all scorers with 22 points. Marv Vigo and Dave Olivo were high for If with 10 points apiece. In a marathon game, The Sticks outlasted The Bank Shots 62-58 for their first victory, despite an excellent 31 point performance by Tom McHenry of the Bank Shots.

Bob Fiddler and Glenn Phillips led the Sticks with 26 and 24 points, respectively. Tippy's brought their record to 3-1, with a 41-34 victory over BBLB. Jim O'Donnell tallied a game high 19 points, for Tippy's, and teammate Joe Hillsey added 11 more points. Ron Mitchell scored 15 points and Charlie Smithson 13 points for BBLB. The Crows defeated the previously unbeaten Celtics in a close game 41-37.

Marty Armenta led all scorers with 16 points and Rocky Sturdivant scored 15 points to pace the win for the Crows. The Celtics were led by Gary Bender and Roger Idiart, as they scored 14 and 12 points respectively.

Girls Take Home Basketball Trophies

Holy Angels and St. Emydius each took home a championship in the 1976, 7th and 8th Grade Girls' Basketball Tournaments, cosponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department and Holy Angels School.

In the 7th grade tournament, Sue Williams hit a set shot from 15 feet to give St. Emydius a sudden death, 23-21 victory over St. Gabriels and the tournament championship.

The lead changed hands several times, and last-second shots kept the game tied at the end of regulation time, and after a 3-minute overtime period. This set the stage for Sue Williams, who settled the issue about one minute into sudden death. Sue led all scorers with a game and tournament high of 15 points. Sheila O'Connor and Mary Dempsey both played exceptionally for St. Gabriels.

In the consolation championship, Anna Marie Viglizzo scored 10 points, and led her O.L.M. team to a 12-4 victory over St. Andrews. Tish Ciolino scored 3 points to lead St. Andrews.

In the 8th grade tournament, Holy Angels defeated St. Andrews 26-15 to win the championship. Anna Marie Moreno scored a game high 12 points to lead Holy Angels, and teammate Gina Pretti added 6 points. St. Andrews was led by Barbara Madrieres, who scored 6 points.

In the consolation championship game, St. Emydius edged out a tired B.Y.A. team 9-5. Dolly Dudley and Renee Klinger paced St. Emydius with four points easy.

B.Y.A. played well in the tournament, although they didn't finish in the top three. In a semi-final battle, Holy Angels, behind the 12-point performance by Theresa Abrahamson, defeated St. Gabriels 21-17. Marlene Flaherty paced St. Gabriels with 11 points.

Surprise! Tennis Courts Being Readied

A group of Parkside residents went home happy from the San Mateo City Council meeting this week.

They had asked the city to expedite construction of two tennis courts as a much-needed recreational improvement at the Bayside School park area, which adjoins Joinville Pool.

To their amazement, they heard the City Council inform them it has close to $25,000 available from federal revenue-sharing funds earmarked for park and recreational use.

John P. Kelly of 1762 Kelly St., representing a group of residents in the area, had come armed with a petition bearing more than 200 signatures.

City Manager Richard DeLong said the tennis courts are, as a matter-of-fact, in the first stage of development.

Spice Cookies for Yule

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Christmas baking is the very best kind of baking because we are usually baking to share.

If you are in a sharing mood — start your baking with these delicious and attractive drop cookies.

SPICETTE COOKIES

1 cup margarine
1 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup mayonnaise
2½ cups flour (reserve ¼ cup for candy)
2 cups rolled oats
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup small gumdrops, cut in half
1 cup coconut

Sprinkle one-fourth cup flour over the cup of gumdrops, set aside and continue with the recipe.

Cream the one cup margarine until fluffy. Add the one cup each white and brown sugar and cream again. Add the half cup mayonnaise and mix well.

Sift together the two and one-fourth cups flour, one teaspoon each baking powder, soda and salt; add to the creamed mixture along with the two cups rolled oats. Mix well. Add the teaspoon vanilla and fold in the cup gumdrops and cup coconut.

Drop onto lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake in 325-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until a nice golden brown.

Makes poodles . . . six dozen or more.

ALMOND CRESCENTS

½ pound butter
1 cup powdered sugar
2 egg yolks
1 cup chopped almonds
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups flour

Cream the half-pound butter. Add the one cup powdered sugar and cream again. Beat the two egg yolks and add to the creamed mixture. Mix well. Add the cup of chopped almonds and the teaspoon vanilla. Gradually add the three cups flour.

When you get to the last cup, you may find it easier to mix by hand. It's easier on the electric mixer if you mix by hand, as the dough becomes very stiff.

Roll the dough into 1½-inch rolls, about 10 inches long. Cut into three-fourth inch slices and shape into crescents. Place on lightly greased cookie sheet and bake in 375-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes. Keep an eye on the baking. You don't want the cookies to brown.

Remove from cookie sheet and roll in powdered sugar while still hot. Sprinkle any remaining powdered sugar over the cookies when you store them.

Westmoor PTA

The Westmoor PTA will welcome parents to "Back to School Night" today.

A short business meeting will be held in the Little Theatre at 7:15 p.m.

Visiting of class rooms will begin at 7:30 following the students schedules.

Clues Sifted in Puzzling Death of Korean

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The cold-blooded slaying of Thomas Wang in front of his Daly City home on Oct. 26, 1976 touched off an investigation that has led police throughout California and neighboring Nevada.

To date, more than 100 persons have been questioned in connection with the crime, including a grizzled Lovelock, Nev. miner.

All have been cleared, according to Daly City Det. Jim Mendiara.

About 6:30 p.m. on Oct. 26, Wang, a well-to-do importer of Korean-made women's wigs, stepped out of his car in front of his home at 132 Mirada St.

A housekeeper heard the automatic garage door opener start and stop.

At the same time, several neighbors heard what sounded like firecrackers popping in the street.

One witness told police she heard "four or five" shots.

When Wang failed to come into the house, the housekeeper investigated and found her employer lying in a pool of blood in front of the home.

A San Mateo County Coroner's report disclosed that eight entry wounds were found on Wang's body.

Police attribute this to the possibility that some bullets went "through and through." That is, the slugs penetrated his chest area exited and then penetrated an arm.

Only four slugs and no casings were found at the scene. The slugs are believed to be from a .38 caliber revolver.

Wang's wife, Margaret, was in Los Angeles at the time Wang was shot.

In recent months, there had been similar slayings of Korean businessmen in the Los Angeles area.

But police are unable to link the Wang killing to any of the LA slayings, said Mendiara, who, along with Det. Harry Lax, is assigned to the case.

Besides the wigs, Wang exported reindeer horns and mercury cinnabar to Korea.

This facet of his business led police to talk to a Nevada prospector who mines mercury cinnabar and sold about 40 pounds of the mineral to Wang shortly before his death.

The miner reportedly sold Wang the mineral for $8,500. It was then resold for about $50,000, police learned.

Mixed with powdered reindeer horn and ginseng root, mercury cinnabar is brewed into a hot drink and consumed in many areas of the Orient in the belief that it will act as a sure-fire aphrodisiac.

Mendiara and Lax have not closed the case but admit they are running out of leads.

"During the past month and a half we have talked to and cleared more than 100 persons who knew Wang, both in the business world and on a personal basis," Mendiara said.

Wang was convicted of manslaughter more than six years ago after he stabbed another man to death inside a San Francisco apartment during an altercation, records indicate.

After mortally wounding the other man, Wang turned the knife on himself and attempted suicide by plunging the knife into his chest.

Police found both men lying on the floor of the apartment. Wang survived, but the man he attacked died. Police do not think there is any link between the two slaying, but they have not ruled the possibility out.

Pacifica Council Accepts New Modified Plans for 'Portolas'

The would-be developers of the 97-unit Portolas apartment complex came up Monday night with an alternative 50-unit condominium offer that the majority of the Pacifica City Council couldn't refuse.

In a 3-2 vote, with Councilmen Stan Farber and Nick Gust dissenting, the council continued its consideration of the ocean-view land between Roberts Road and Highway One until March 14.

In doing that, the council averted several threatened lawsuits and put a damper on at least one of the issues in a recall movement that's been growing for the last month.

The decision to give developers Ron Tate and Dave Lazares of San Jose until March to come up with a compromise was reached after six different 3-2 votes, including disputes over parliamentary procedure.

In the next three months, the developers will be putting together a detailed plan. Attorney John Norman said the developers are contemplating 50 condominiums, probably in the $60,000 to $65,000 price range.

The Portolas became an explosive issue in the coastal city in November when the council, again split 3-2, postponed action on the project and instead instituted a rezoning of the land to commercial-recreation. The rezoning would have blocked the 97-unit apartment complex that was three years in the making.

The action led to threats of lawsuits by the developer and by the San Mateo County Concerned Citizens Coalition and it spurred a recall against Mayor Janice Fulford and Councilmen Sidney Lorvan and Mark Savage.

However, Monday night, the three accepted Norman's offer to delay all action for 90 days.

"None of us wants the expense and delay of litigation which just separates us all and postpones good development," Norman said in a letter to the council.

Lorvan and City Atty. Gloria Scheid had met with Tate and his attorney Wednesday night in Lorvan's office to discuss the possibility of a compromise.

In addition to the delay, the council and developer agreed:

• Neither party would institute litigation concerning the property, its development or rezoning prior to March 14.

• No zoning or land use action of any kind — including a zoning freeze, building freeze or moratorium — would occur prior to March 28.

• Tate would not apply for any building permits prior to March 28.

"Everybody ought to put his smoking gun on the table and give us 90 days," Norman said.

The developers already have spent $55,000 on the project, which was scaled down from a 137-unit proposal three years ago.

Gust and Farber, however, said the developer should stick to the original proposal which was presented to the council on the appeal of the Planning Commission's unanimous approval in August.

Farber said he believes the developers have tried to compromise. However, the condomnium plan, he said, is an entirely new proposal, making the development no longer an apartment complex but rather single-family homes.

"I think you're on shaky grounds, there," Farber said. Norman had said he considers the condomnium plan merely an "amendment" to the original plan.

"I'm really sick and tired of being the laughingstock of this whole county," Farber said. Developers, he said, are going to be saying they wouldn't touch Pacifica with a 10-foot pole.

At one point, Farber proposed a motion to uphold the 97 points. It failed, 2-3.

"I wish to hell you would stand up for your rights instead of buckling under," Farber told the developers.

Gust called the entire rezoning attempt by the council majority a "railroad job," saying the move to rezone the property was based on the personal feelings of individual council members and not on the development issues.

Gust also objected to Lorvan's meeting with the developer and his attorney. Lorvan said the meeting was held at the request of the developer and that he did not attempt to influence Tate to change his project design.

Early in the evening, the council members argued over whether to open a public hearing on the Portolas plan. When the capacity crowd broke into laughter and applause at council confusion, Mayor Fulford turned to city codes concerning the conduct of persons attending meetings. Disturbing a public meeting, she warned, is a misdemeanor and those who are suspect are subject to arrest.

Councilman Mark Savage defended the compromise offer, calling it a reasonable solution. It's senseless, he said, to proceed with a plan three members of the council obviously do not like.

After the council's 3-2 vote postponing all action until March 14, Gust requested that a transcript of all the hearings concerning the Portolas be compiled for future developers to examine and for the Planning Commission to study.

"We have really accomplished history in the last two months," the angry councilman said.

Farber also said the commission should receive verbatim notes of the Monday meeting in particular.

"We should let them be aware that the same baloney that went on at the last meeting went on at this meeting," Farber said.

Lorvan said the condominium compromise "has a great deal of merit." Preliminary plans are for development on the south end of the property, with the north end reserved for recreational or commercial development.

"I'm really surprised there's anyone who's not enthusiastic about this proposal," Lorvan said.

Museum To Hire Staffer

A foundation grant has enabled the Coyote Point Museum Association to hire a coordinator of program and volunteer activities.

The Luke B. Hancock Foundation has provided a $12,000 grant for program research and development prior to the opening of the new Coyote Point Museum for Environmental Research in San Mateo.

According to Gerald George, museum director, the staff assistant to the director provided by the one-year grant will "work with the board of trustees, staff, Association volunteers and other community organizations to plan and implement educational and community service programs for the new Museum."

George invited those interested in applying for the position, which carries a salary of $850 monthly, to submit resumes to the Coyote Point Museum Association, Coyote Point, San Mateo, Ca. 94401 by Jan. 7.

Embezzlement Charge Levied

A 19-year-old bookkeeper at the QFI store at the Pacifica Eureka Square Shopping Center in Pacifica was scheduled to be arraigned today in North County Judicial District Court in South San Francisco on embezzlement charges.

According to Pacifica Police court officer Mike Blagrove, Mary N. Otto, of 1711 Marco Polo Way, Burlingame, allegedly took some $100 a day from the food store since late November.

Sea Cliff Development Moves Ahead

Tentative approval of a subdivision map and a grading permit for a proposed residential community in the western hills of San Bruno was approved by a split vote of the City Council Monday night.

The developer of the project, however, will be forced to await the results of comprehensive geological studies before any work can begin on the subdivision, known as Sea Cliff.

The council determined that a consulting engineer, paid for by the developer, Western American Land Corp., but selected by the city should conduct detailed seismic, traffic circulation and water runoff studies in connection with the proposed plan before the homes are allowed to be built.

The developer wants to build 69 single-family detached homes on a 23-acre parcel on the north side of Sharp Park Road, near Skyline Boulevard.

The parcel is located about one-fourth mile from the San Andreas Fault.

Plans call for extensive cut-and-fill grading, which is likely to entail the movement of some 250,000 cubic yards of earth. The cuts could be up to 45 feet and the grades up to about 65 feet.

An environmental impact report approved last September states that it is possible some blasting would be required as home site improvements are installed.

A fully developed neighborhood park and the installation of a traffic signal at the intersection of Sharp Park Road and Pacific Heights Boulevard also are included in the plans.

It is expected that the new housing project would bring about 281 new residents into San Bruno.

Monday night, Charles Keenan, president of the Menlo Park development firm, reminded the council that he had complied with all conditions for development in formulating the subdivision plans.

But Kathie Stats, a spokeswoman for the Milagra Canyon Study Committee, which has opposed the plans since they were brought before the Planning Commission, said her group believes the project is unsuitable for the site.

The committee has maintained repeatedly that the land should not be altered to suit the housing project, but, rather, the project should be tailored to suit the terrain.

Mrs. Stats argued that no tentative tract map should be approved before the "magnitude of potential seismic hazards" had been defined in geological studies.

And another resident, Les Kelting, suggested that approval be withheld until the developer is required to pay for a pedestrian overpass across the four-lane Sharp Park Road in lieu of a traffic signal.

"This is probably one of the most dangerous intersections in the City of San Bruno," Kelting said. "Kids will be crossing that busy street every day to go to school, and the safest way for them to cross is an overpass."

Kelting reminded the council of an accident several years ago when a child was struck by a car and killed as she attempted to cross at a signalized intersection on Junipero Serra Boulevard.

Ellie Larson said she believes cluster housing would be a more suitable development on the site.

William Kelly, director of Planning and Building, said, however, that such housing is allowed in the planned development and residential design zoning districts.

The 23-acre parcel is zoned R-1 or residential.

Councilman Tony Governale said that although he had some concerns about seismic conditions in the area, he could see no reason to deny the tentative tract map since the developer had met all the requirements of the city code.

Governale emphasized that he would insist that a seismic study show the project is suitable for the area before he would vote for final approval of the development.

"If the study shows that the development is not right for that area, then we would have every reason to deny the project," Governale said. "But I don't see how we legally cannot approve the tentative map at this time."

Councilman John Barnard agreed with his colleague, then blasted what he called the "no-growth attitude" in the city.

"The no-growthers will continue to find excuses for not approving this project," said Barnard. "I truthfully don't think some of these people have any real concerns, only made-up fantasies that don't exist."

Councilman Gary Mondfrans said he would abstain from voting until he could review the consulting engineer's geological studies.

"I think it is very unusual that we are acting on a tentative subdivision map before we even see a (seismic) report on the project," he said.

Mondfrans also said he had concerns about the possibility of blasting so close to the San Andreas Fault.

Councilman Griffith opposed the tract map and grading permit because, he said, the public would be excluded from any discussion of the engineer's report once it is completed and submitted to the staff.

A limited number of entrees will be available, and prices will be moderate.....HARRY CURUSIS and MEL CICERO, owners of the BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno, have inked the popular TRI SOUNDS to another year of entertainment. This group is a big hit with the dance crowds (Tuesdays through Saturdays).....It is "on your mark, get set and go" to NICK GUST'S three Rockaway Beach restaurants (THE MOONRAKER, NICK'S and CAPTAIN CHARLES). There's action galore and the holiday spirit fills the air.....ROBERT and CLAUDETTE MERLET, GARE SAINT LAZARE owners, are preparing for a New Year's Eve party which will include all the traditional extras for celebrating. All it costs to "whoop it up" is $25 per couple. . . . Holiday decorations abound at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S in Redwood City. Sip a cool cocktail, dine on toothsome cuisine and enjoy the festive atmosphere at this award-winning restaurant.

THREE PROFESSIONALS

Bob McLane (center), host-owner of Yolanda's Cafe in South San Francisco, introduces two new employees, Chef Dick Allen, working the day shift, and Blanche Miles, who is the evening cook.

Lehr's Greenhouse Rates Many Raves

Jerry Hulse, famed Southern California travel writer, raved about LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden restaurant in a feature story on the San Francisco dining scene. Hulse wrote, "More tropical than Hawaii, more lush than Tahiti. Lehr's Greenhouse is one man's slice of the South Seas." ..... ROLAND RAVEN, skipper of the RAVEN'S COTTAGE in Belmont, is featuring a Quiche Lorraine luncheon special which sounds mighty fetching. Your Bright Lighter is going to check it out — how about you? .....Christmas shoppers are making VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant a luncheon and early-dinner headquarters. Excellent menu and fast service.....Look for New Year's Eve news from the VILLA HOTEL in Friday's Bright Lights. If you were one of the many who enjoyed the last New Year's bash here, no doubt you'll be on the fun scene again..... ENRICO ROMANO has been approached by a department store head to play the role of Santa for the kiddies. However, at this time of the year jolly Romano has to say "Ho, ho, ho" and continue to oversee his ROMANO'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica..... PHIL LEHR'S Wellington Room in San Francisco is an elegant spot for holiday dining. The posh restaurant is decorated with a fortune in antique treasures from some of San Francisco's most famous old mansions. . . . From the clanging of jackpots at the SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET and BARNEY'S CASINO, one would think MR. CLAUS had his sleigh parked along side. Although skiers are anticipating snow, the summer weather continues to attract big crowds. As of this writing, it is warmer in the Lake Tahoe area than in the Bay Area. . . . The IRON GATE restaurant in Belmont is serving luncheon until 3 p.m., which is great news for the shopping crowds, as well as the regulars. . . .

Lawsuit Change Argued

Whether a lawsuit seeking to overturn the County Board of Supervisors' rejection of 5,240 new homes on San Bruno Mountain will be transferred to another county was argued Thursday.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge William Lanam took under submission a request by Visitacion Associates to transfer the case from San Mateo County.

Visitacion Associates, the would-be developers of San Bruno Mountain, filed suit after supervisors voted 3 to 2 last March to reject housing plans for the so-called "saddle area" of San Bruno Mountain. The suit alleges, among other things, that the board failed to consider regional housing needs in making a determination.

Howard Ellman, attorney for Visitacion, told Judge Lanam that the transfer is sought because the firm is a non-resident of San Mateo County, and presently does not conduct a business here. Those reasons, said he, are sufficient for a venue change.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Henry Dieta argued otherwise, and said that Visitacion's affadavit supporting its motion contained "innuendos implying prejudice . . . Visitacion Associates is saying that the entire San Mateo County bench (should be) disqualified because it would have to be concerned about being reelected. . . ."

Dietz termed that ridiculous, and praised the judges. He said that the lawsuit would be a non-jury matter, and is not subject to the venue change.

Notice

Messages concerning distribution or delivery of the North County Post should be telephoned between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. (589-1234) or sent in writing to the North County Post, 205 W. Angus Ave., San Bruno, Ca. 94066.

RETURNING

Daly City Police Chief David A. Hansen and Assistant Chief Richard C. Sims, right, welcome Police Officer Arthur L. Glass following a swearing-in ceremony. Glass was reinstated to the Daly City Police Department Dec. 1, following a four-year absence, when he worked as an investigator for the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office.

CHRISTMAS POEM

T'was the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
But, alas and alack, t'was no fire screen there!
A few feet away stood the holiday tree
So majestic! So regal! And as dry as could be . .
Its lights left glowing, what a sight to behold!
And the wiring beneath was time-worn and old.
Mother was sleeping in flannel of red,
And Father, in blue, was smoking in bed.
The children were restless in their tosses and turns.
Each wearing a night shirt that will too easily burn .
I cannot go on; my story ends here.
There won't be a Christmas for this family, I fear!

How about you there? Do you follow the rules?
To help you be safe, I'll give you some clues:
Be careful with candles! No matches for kids!
Make sure all poisons have tight-fitting lids!
No drinking when driving! Don't leave children alone!
Instead, leave a sitter and your name by the phone.
Leave her the numbers of the following three:
The firemen, the police, and your favorite M.D.
Are you fire safe? Need first aid at all?
Just pick up the phone; give the station a call.
That's what it's for. Help with this (and for that!)
They'll be at your door in just two minutes flat!

The joys of the season! A safe New Year too!
Good health and happiness to each one of you!

Darleen Hayden

The Place Joined To School Ballot

The Place apartment rezoning issue will be consolidated with school district trustee elections in March, the San Bruno City Council decided Monday night.

The council set the special election after City Clerk Terri Rasmussen formally reported that a citizens group had successfully gathered enough voter signatures on a referendum petition to qualify the issue for the ballot.

Thus, on March 8, San Bruno voters will go to the polls to elect school district trustees and to determine if a seven-acre parcel at the corner of Sneath Lane and Cherry Avenue should be rezoned from administrative research (A-R) to a high density residential design district (R-4-D).

A vote for the R-4-D is a vote for the expansion of The Place apartments by 176 units. A vote for A-R is to oppose the expansion and favors the future construction of office buildings on the site.

The council agreed to inform the county that it wants 30 precincts open in the city on March 8. The cost to the city for the election consolidation and the 30 precincts is expected to be $7,500. The council could have voted to establish 16 precincts at a cost of about $4,500, but it chose to spend the extra money to allow voters a more convenient opportunity to participate.

Douglas Dawkins, who headed the referendum petition drive, asked the council to save the city the expense of an election by changing its vote to rezone The Place property to allow for expansion.

State law provides that if a referendum petition is successful, a governing body has the choice of placing the issue on the ballot or repealing its action.

Dawkins pointed out that more than 2,000 registered voters in the city signed the petitions in 30 days.

Ray Schenone, a petition circulator, also called on the council to repeal its rezoning ordinance, declaring, "The people in this community are going to turn the issue down."

Molesting Suspect Indicted

A 71-year-old retired truck loader has been indicted on charges of molesting six young South San Francisco boys.

Named in the indictment returned by the San Mateo County Grand Jury Thursday night was Grant Cooper, formerly of San Francisco. He has been extradicted from Corpus Christi, Tex., and is being held on $25,000 bail.

The case culminated a one-year police investigation spearheaded by Miflin Singleton of the South San Francisco Police Department. The boys ranged in age from six to 11.

Asst. Dist. Atty. J. Robert Courshon said today that Cooper "would win the confidence of the parents of the boys, then take them on trips to Disneyland, Yosemite, basketball and football games."

The alleged crimes occurred between May of 1974 and last December.

Courshon said that Cooper is charged with eight counts of child molestation and six counts of oral copulation.
